

OHR BiH TV News Summary, 28 Dec. 1997

28 December 97, 19:30

Bijeljina – Under strong security measures, the RS Constituting National Assembly session began. It lasted for eight hours, not counting the two hour delay at the beginning. The political polarisation among those who accept democratisation and those who don't, was obvious. Iconography and Serb anthem were present at the session. The deputies from the Federation, but later also the IC representatives, left the session hall while the anthem was being sung.

Directly getting to the point and without formality Ambassador Hanns Schumacher, Senior Deputy High Representative, yesterday warned the deputies at the RS National Assembly of losing too much time. Schumacher called on them to face their responsibilities, reminding them that the DPA is not an instrument for exercising pressure on the Serbs, but the only way for a civilised, dignified and unified life. He also underlined that integration is the key to economic success.

Ambassador Schumacher handed out a list of points with which the National Assembly should deal at future sessions. This is a time-table for you on your way to Europe, don't be late! Westendorp's Deputy said. The list encompasses all outstanding laws and regulations which will enable RS to take steps towards the BiH state. The first one is arresting of the persons indicted for war crimes. The same importance was given to the request for establishing general conditions for refugee return. Municipalities which show their readiness for the return of pre-war citizens can expect IC assistance. Ambassador Schumacher demanded the opening of railway, telecommunication and bus lines with the Federation, acceptance of economic framework laws, including the Law on privatisation. He demanded establishment of the unified system of car licence plates by 31 January 1998, as well as harmonisation of the Constitution and other RS laws with the State Constitution. OHR further demanded that the orders of the Brcko Supervisor be respected. Also expected was the establishment of a system for automatic monthly money transfer from the RS budget into the BiH Budget to cover costs for administrative expenditure, as well as for servicing of the BiH foreign debt by 31 March 1998.

According to the OHR List the RS authorities should especially seriously deal with the refugee return, property issue and they should enable the rule of law and work on judiciary reform.

The session will continue on 12 January.
