US Media – The first reactions of the American media relating to the visit of Robert Gelbard and Richard Holbrook (the former and the actual American peace envoys in BiH), did not express much satisfaction about the trip. The most serious criticism is directed to them for not obtaining a breakthrough in delivering of the war crimes indicted persons to the Hague Tribunal. It has been expected much more to be done by Holbrook. In short, he only received the Serbs promises to carry out the promises they violated after having signed them. Holbrook himself declared that he was sceptical that the Serbs would obey an agreement on delivering Karadzic. The only encouraging thing is that Clinton is apparently not planning to give up and that his advisors told that he spends more time on Bosnia issue than it has been publicly admitted, informs TV correspondent after monitoring information of US Media. Instead of solving the key dangers for Bosnia unification, refugee difficulties to return to their homes and eliminating Karadzic's influence, he spent most of his time on the Balkans discussing telephone numbers, design of the joint currency and allocation of the ambassadorial posts. Washington Post informs that Holbrook warned Milosevic that Clinton's administration is ready to arrest Karadzic if he doesn't go voluntary.

The manager of the SDS Directorate, Vlade Vrkes warned that there will be no elections if manipulations with 15% of Brcko voters continue, that is, if the PEC does not find a positive solution to Brcko voters' complaints. He also noted that certain elements want to melt the RS into a unitary BiH by manipulating with voters. Flash news:

Reuters reported that Holbrooke's mission has only strengthened Krajisnik and Milosevic's positions, saying that Holbrooke came to BiH with a request for the hand-over of those accused for war crimes, but accepted Krajisnik's promise that he will personally do everything to prevent Karadzic from acting publicly or being involved with the RS politics. The US is afraid of capturing war criminals since it can easily turn into undesired bloodshed. DPA reported that Holbrooke's visit passed without concrete results. In Split, Tudjman and Izetbegovic did not show even one bit of readiness for return of refugees. In Sarajevo, the Presidency and the CoM resolved minor issues, whereas in Belgrade, everything came down to promises. Neues Deutschland reported that US is stingy when financial aid is concerned, but it gladly gives expensive weapons to the Federation on the other hand.

POWs and missing persons – SRT comment – Destiny of more than 2,000 POWs and several thousands of people who were found missing since September 1995 is still uncertain. Most of them are not at listed either by international organisations or the Federation Commission that works on this issue. Destiny of more than 1,000 Serbs who were found missing after Muslim attempts to create an Islamic state in the heart of Europe is uncertain too. Those responsible are playing games with dead bodies and unaccounted ones and nobody wants to take responsibility. Member of the RS Commission for Exchange of POWs, Ivancevic said that 'there are people alive in both sides... We have information about their number and location, but those information are not checked yet, so they cannot be given either to the families or made public because we are still waiting for some solution. Those who would admit that they keep POWs imprisoned would sentence themselves to the Hague. We are trying to reach a compromise and we didn't hide our concerns from Mr. Vance and Mr. Samaruga.'
