Receiving this year's individual 6 April prize [in honor of the day of liberation of Sarajevo 1945], today for extraordinary contribution to the BiH country's defence, its spirit, democratic development in BiH and the world, personal courage and high mindeness, Alija Izetbegovic said that this prize should have been awarded to a soldier at the front line and he himself deserved much more the second, collective 6 April prize for staying in Sarajevo together with other citizens in its besieged town. This town must also never forget 6 April 1945, when fascist were thrown out of this town, he pointed out. The receivers of the collective prize were the citizens – defenders of Sarajevo, soldiers and civilians –dead, as well as those still living — for the miraculous defense of Sarajevo during the aggression in recent war.

Summary SRT News

Trebinje – The greatest cultural event in the RS, ‘Ducic’s Evenings of Poetry’, will start this evening. [Jovan Ducic is a great Serb writer and poet who warned Serbs about what could happen to them if they are not unified, i.e. if they keep on trusting Muslims and Croats – according to SRT news broadcast some time ago.] This is the second time this event is celebrated in the free RS. The organising board of the Evenings elected the new chairman [Zukovic] who replaced the late Nikola Koljevic, a great Serb, novelist, and ‘Shakespearologist’. 5:00

The world media about the RS:

It is well known that HR Deputy Steiner is a distinguished member of the lobby which fully supports Muslim policy against the Serbs. While in Berlin, Steiner passionately said that the arrest of former RS leadership is a precondition for a democratic society, indirectly accusing the RS for violation of the DPA. He didn’t mention any problems in the Federation, although the current situation in Mostar is more serious than ever. He delivered his speech before Muslim refugees in Germany and got a frantic applause in return.

Brcko-Mostar issue – What is the connection between Brcko and Mostar, since they received the same treatment when local elections are concerned? Brcko remained Serb after the Award, whereas Mostar is becoming more and more divided. What is the similarity between those two towns, when Mostar is the city where Croats and Muslims are being evicted every day and the current situation is about to reach its climax, and Brcko, where the similar national tensions or possibility of inter-national conflict do not exist? Why does the international community, prior to Farrand’s arrival, underline Brcko as a critical spot. There are no reasons for international community to be afraid of Muslim massive and illegal inhabiting the region and cutting the RS off. Since Brcko is extremely important target, for it’s the only way out to the Sava river and, since the US troops surrounded the area, it is certain that international community wants to increase tension in town for the purpose of having full control over it, and justifies deployment of international police forces, which was also HR Bildt’s intention when insisting on IPTF control [without any participation of RS police]. Facts above prove the US great interest in this region. However, the OSCE decision to postpone elections in these two towns can also be understood as their fear from election results and forced reconciliation and return of refugees which didn’t bear fruits in Mostar.
