PDHR Butler : how much country can afford to pay state MPs?	Oslobođenje pg 2 ‘Budget too small for deputies benefits’ by M. Kavaz Sirucic – Daily carries that the proposal of the Law on Rights and Obligations of the BiH Parliamentarians should be discussed by the BiH Parliament immediately after MPs start working again [RS MPs boycott the Parliament because of the failure of the Council of Ministers to establish the Sarajevo Commission]. Author is particularly critical of the proposal to allow retirement of MPs at age of 55, i.e. 53 in case of women after only 2 years of work in the Parliament. If approved, they would be granted a pension of approx. 1800 KM. Principle Deputy to the HR, Lawrence Butler , warns the law would seriously affect fiscal sustainability of the country as the international obligations, internal debt and restitution costs is already enough for BiH to bankrupt. He also noted that setting this age of retirement is contradictory with trends in Europe, where this retirement is being postponed to more senior age: “Especially offensive is a regulation stipulating that families of MPs serving sentences for crimes against humanity, violation of international law or violation of the constitutional order are also entitled to their pensions.” PDHR also underlines additional problem is the fact that all other levels of authorities want to copy this law. On the other hand, the MPs claim they were forced to propose this solution, as the Finance Ministry still hasn’t drafted a law on salaries in state institutions. Butler also explained one of the IMF’s conditions is to remove constitutional regulation which prevents a decrease of MPs’ salaries. “I know that situation is complicated and I am convinced that many in civil service are lobbying for privileged positions. However, EU would asked for the respond to IMF’s question which is: how much your country can afford to pay state MPs” said Butler .

He called upon BiH Parliamentarians to reconsider the sale of telecom infrastructure, since this is of the essence for the BiH. Katica emphasized the RS Government has damaged both BH Telecom and HT Mostar by bidding with the price of KM800 million for sale of the RS Telekom. "That is a wrong move. First of all, figure that was presented is too low. Three billion euros is a real price of BH Telecom that needs to be fought for at the market. In comparison to us value of 'Telecom Srpske' is 1.5 to 2 billion KM," said Katica.
