The vote-of-confidence can be run if votes of 20 MP's are collected. Drago Kalabic from DNS stressed that it is clear that RS Government does not have RS NA majority. He also called upon Bukejlovic to resign, expressing expectation PDP would support DNS initiative. Veselin Poljasevic, Head of PDP Caucus at the RS NA, stated that: "RS Government does not have our support. However, decision on possible suspension of support to Government will be reached by party institutions." Chair of SDS Caucus Borislav Bojic said that he doesn't expect anything large to happen, adding that Government will not lose majority. He said: "If you are withdrawing then you should withdraw from positions that you are on. So, we were absolutely clear, when it comes to Presidency stance- from all, and there are many of them." Milorad Dodik, SNSD President, remained faithful to his initial position that owing to failures, RS Government should initiative vote-of-confidence by itself, adding that SNSD would support Government revocation only in case if PDP promised it would fight racketeering privatisation. "NATO membership conference": After defence reform, cooperation with ICTY only remaining condition	PINK By Adriana Domazet - In organization of BiH Alliance for Security and British Embassy, Conference "Membership in NATO- security and stability in region" was held in Sarajevo. British Ambassador to BiH Mathew Rycroft said that goal of this Conference is to spread ideas on what BiH and countries in the region can gain from NATO membership. "Success of defence reform means that BiH has only one more condition to join PfP and that is full cooperation with ICTY and extradition of war criminals Karadzic and Mladic," said Ambassador Rycroft. Chairman of BiH Alliance for Security Sejfudin Tokic explained that goal of this Conference is to accelerate reforms and remove all prejudices, caused by unawareness regarding global security. Co- Chair of BiH Defence Reform Commission Raffi Gregorian said that after passing of Laws on Defence and Armed Forces, for the first time BiH will have armed forces compatible to NATO. Gregorian emphasised that these reforms will take time and additional financial and political resources, stressing that they will try to explain to the people and the Parliament what needs to be done for creating of conditions, which would accelerate BiH's way toward fulltime-membership in NATO. BHT 1 by Mirela Cosic - Gregorian expressed hope that NATO would approve the action plan for membership in this international organization until the completion of implementation of laws in defence sector by the end of 2007. But it would be the major step backwards in the implementation of defence reform if the proposed budget for BiH Ministry of Defence - approximately 300 millions KM - is not approved. In that case, some activities would not be carried out, stated BiH Deputy Minister of Defence Enes Becirbasic. Hayat, Oslobodjenje pg 4 'After the defense reform, cooperation with the Hague remains' not signed, Dnevni Avaz pg 5 'Support to admission of BiH to NATO is somewhat weaker in RS' by Fena, Nezavisne Novine pg 8 'No NATO without BAM 300 million' by N.Krsman also reported.

DL says that in this way a concession was made to Covic since he is convinced that he would preserve control over HDZ with Lozancic as the HDZ President and that he (Covic) would be a President from the shadow as he used to be when Barisa Colak led the party. The source also reveals that the package of measures that HDZ and EPP are going to take might contain the decision on pardoning of Bozo Ljubic, Josip Merdzo and Martin Raguz.

Bjelica carries an interview with Head of the OHR's Unit for Implementation of the Mostar Statute Richard Williams, whose unit ceases with its work on Wednesday (today). Asked to judge the job that has been done so far, Williams said: 'The process of the Mostar Statute implementation was very difficult for 2 reasons. One of the reasons refers on falling behind schedule and the delay itself since none party or ethnic group had majority and therefore a consensus was necessary for the smallest decision in Mostar. The second problem were hardliners. It is not a secret that we lost 5 months during this year because of obstructions and hardliners' acting. However, a progress has been achieved in 4 main areas and they are: authority, unification of institutions, development and maintaining of infrastructure and economic development.' Asked as to when Mostar might start to function as a normal city, Williams says: 'What would really bring changes are the institutions with ethnic representation of all. From my previous experience I can say that 2 years of implementation are necessary and one year to finish the things and that everything falls into place.'
Sarovic, Vucurevic comments HR's pardons: decisions for all; GS: Removed officials will not suspend their procedure before Strasbourg Court re. HR's decision	Hayat report by ATV- The HR Paddy Ashdown announced decision on pardoning some officials replaced, which caused many comments and even Mirko Sarovic, only few hours before arrested, reacted. Nikola Poplasen, former RS president and one of pardoned officials, deems this decision not as recognition of his innocence, but as another act of dictatorship. "Decision on so called pardoning is pretty ridiculous, as was the decision on punishing [us]. I understood that majority of us have been pardoned... and that we have right to apply for desk clerks, but nothing further," added Poplasen. Sarovic and Bozidar Vucurevic were not pardoned. Vucurevic commented he feels fortunate, adding that he was afraid of pardoning, because of which he taken some action and frozen his membership in SDS in order to avoid this humiliating pardon. "The latest decision, including the one from a month ago, is practically dozing the justice by a spoon. I am disappointed with the recent decision and my stance is already know- abolishment of HR's decisions, immediately and for everyone," commented Sarovic. "I think that this is probably about some kind of silent understanding inside the IC circles, so that new HR here wouldn't be faced with a ballast of a past time," commented Dusan Stojicic, RSNA Speaker. Reporter reminded that some of those pardoned searched for justice before the international courts, but epilogues of these lawsuits are still unknown. Glas Srpske pg 5 'Circus goes on' by N.Zelenovic - Daily carries statement of Slobodan Saraba, President of the Association "Justice", the association formed by the removed officials in BiH to protect their rights, said that the latest HR's decision makes no change to their activities, adding: "We will not give up on procedures we have launched before Strasbourg International Court for Human Rights." Nezavisne Novine pg 2 'Jelavic, Covic, Bicakcic, Pecelj pardoned...', announced on cover 'Bicakcic, Jelavic, Covic, Pecelj, Lemez Alibabic pardoned' by D.Risojevic - Daily publishes two lists it prepared of both officials pardoned that non-pardoned.

RTRS 'Crvena linija' on const. changes: Agreement to be reached by consensus, not imposed by IC	RTRS 'Crvena linija' magazine by Zoran Popovic - Programme dedicated to the constitutional changes gathered SNSD official Krstan Simic, SDS' Mladen Bosic, SDA's Mirsad Ceman and HDZ's Barisa Colak. Simic said the changes should be carried out within BiH Parliament or relevant Entity Institutions before the forthcoming elections. He added that FBiH should change its Constitution. Bosic stated that ability of BiH politicians to independently discuss the issue, without IC, shows the readiness for reaching an agreement. "We are ready to reach the agreement if other parties give up of their extreme requests" concluded Bosic. He notes that BiH will be a normal state only when IC leaves it. Ceman is of opinion that the agreement will be reached by consensus. Colak repeats HDZ advocates for new constitution, adding the changes will not be imposed by anyone adding that American Government has already greatly helped the negotiations. As for the issue of one President, Ceman stated that certain members of BiH Presidency act upon their own principles and/or without joint platform on the foreign policy. "This proves that, in the times when we still haven't fully restored the confidence, we need three-member Presidency as we cannot trust only one person," added Simic. Colak commented there should be one President, elected by the Parliament. On the issue of Council of Ministers, Colak is opinion that CoM should gradually take over most of the BiH Presidency's powers. Ceman believes that CoM should be abolished and the BiH Government established instead. Bosic on the other hand claims there are not obstacles to normal functioning of the CoM adding current composition needs only Ministry of Agriculture.

The HR also said: 'I still have a few small things that I have to finish before I leave the duty. I have to finish tasks that I have set to myself. This is about adoption of a few laws such as the one on obligation...Then I would like to work, as much as it is possible, on opening a new phase, that is, giving bigger powers to the BiH authorities and complete building of BiH as a normal, democratic country.' At the end of the interview VL speculates that, most probably, Christian Schwartz-Schilling would be the next HR.

After the meeting with BiH Minister of Communications and Transport Branko Dokic, Kalmeta stressed that Croatia would continue preparing for the construction of the bridge between Peljesac island and the mainland. “Croatia needs that bridge and it has the right to build it; but, on the other side, Croatia is obliged to assure harmless and free access for all the ships which will go to Neum”, stated Kalmeta after the meeting. Croatia will deliver to BiH Council of Ministers all the necessary documentation on construction of the bridge between Peljesac and the mainland by the end of the year. In the same time, Kalmeta categorically rejected media speculations that the implementation of this project could be linked with the ratification of the agreement on state border with BiH. Kalmeta added that some legal issues regarding the small rock islands Mali Skolj and Veliki Skolj are yet to be clarified, and that two Commissions for borders would have to solve this problem. Croatian Government on Monday stopped the ratification of the agreement on state border with BiH, signed in 1999; Croatian Prime Minister Ivo Sanader urged BiH CoM to postpone the ratification as well, suggesting that the new meeting on inter-state border should be held. According to 1999 agreement, signed by two late presidents Franjo Tudjman and Alija Izetbegovic, the peak of the Klek peninsula and two rock islands Mali Skolj and Veliki Skolj would belong to BiH. RTL – President Stjepan Mesic also thinks that current borders shouldn't be changed. Hayat by Lejla Gutlic – BiH authorities, including Council of Ministers weren't informed about this meeting. Bozidar Kalmeta stated that Peljesac bridge and borders issue were not related, but reporter disagreed. She stressed that border issue and bridge were brought into relation after conversation with Halilovic, who claims that expert studies have prove that land that Croatia plans to build the bridge on is not suitable, which would increase the price of the construction works, adding this was the reason for which they want BiH territory near Mali and Veliki Skolj. Reporter explained that if Croatia would get this territory, in return they would build a bridge between two countries in Bosanska Gradiska, which could explain the interest of Minister Branko Dokic. Hayat adds it has contacted the office of the Croatian Ambassador to BiH Josip Vrhbosic, but his associates told them that Ambassador is outside BiH. However, reported found him at the meeting with Dokic. BHT 1 by Sanita Lisica-Biberovic – Member of BiH Commission for state borders Zeljko Obradovic claim that the border between BiH and Croatia, established in 1999, cannot be changed. Kalamujic – CoM Chair Adnan Terzic said on Tuesday that BiH and Croatia might reconsider the agreement on inter-state border near Neum but that he did not see what could be changed in what the two authorized states' commissions had already signed. Terzic believes that there is a connection between the reactions in BiH to start of construction of Peljesac bridge and Croatian Prime Minister Ivo Sanader's government's intentions to again raise the issue of inter-state border line. The part of this package is problem of use of Croatian Port of Ploce, according to Terzic. “By building the Peljesac bridge, Sanader has made it clear he does not want to talks on Port of Ploce,” said Terzic.
