We are now just days away from the tenth anniversary year of Dayton and of Srebrenica. And yet still the chief architect of the murder of 8,000 men and boys is being protected by Belgrade and harboured by some in Banja Luka. Until that changes, nothing changes... Not a single one of those indicted by ICTY for the worst crimes against humanity of recent years has been arrested by the RS authorities. Until that is done, nothing can be done. No future, no stable peace, no road to Europe, no path to NATO, no fulfilment of Dayton, no chance to put the past behind us. And no amount of resignations, no political manoeuvres will alter this in any way. The cause of the present situation is not the recent package of measures. It is Banja Luka's nine-year failure to conform to Dayton and their international obligations. This is the task they must get on with - and Belgrade should be helping them - not, as at present, actively frustrating their efforts. We are wasting time again.
