

Inzko: Now is the time to invest in BiH

“Now is the time to invest in BiH,” High Representative Valentin Inzko stated today in his address at the conference “2020 Vision for Bosnia and Herzegovina: Improving the Business Climate” in Vienna. The conference was organized by the John Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, the Diplomatic Academy of Vienna, the America Bosnia Foundation, and the Center for Transatlantic Relations.

“There is no denying that there are political challenges. But the investment opportunities and advantages the country offers far outweigh the short-term difficulties that are still found in the business environment”, said the High Representative, adding, however, that there is still a lot of work to be done.

“It is not just a question of improving the breadth and depth of the reform process. We also need the pace of reform being accelerated. It is this that will create recognizable momentum and it is this momentum that investors want to see. The dynamism of the process must be tangible and recognizable,” High Representative Inzko concluded.
