Last PM of socialist Yugoslavia to visit BiH as the Italian investors' representative	BHTV, Vecernji List front "A. Markovic will build hydro power-plants in BiH" and page 2 "Markovic would build little hydro power-plants in BiH", by Zdenko Jurilj - The last Prime Minister of socialist Yugoslavia Ante Markovic is to arrive to Sarajevo on Monday in the name of group of Italian investors. He will meet BiH and FBiH Prime Ministers Adnan Terzic and Ahmet Hadzipasic to discuss the possibilities of foreign investments in BiH small and middle-size hydroelectric power stations. In the phone interview for BHTV1 Markovic stated the following: "What I concluded was that this business has developed enough, and that is the reason why these people are considering their investments in it. They requested the presence of a skilled and authoritative person (turned out to be me) that could assist on making the best possible realization of this project. I have already spoken of my willingness to become engaged in various projects that could make progress in BiH. As far as I'm concerned, this would not be the only project that I am willing to assist on." On the reporter's question about him waiting for 12 years to speak about the events in early 90's, Markovic said: "It would take a while for me to answer this question. After I was unable to prevent certain events in 90's, I decided to withdraw from politics. My ambitions on becoming engaged in politics again died. And whom would I tell this? Who was prepared to listen? Everyone was burdened by their problems, and was influenced by various political circles. My words would definitely be understood."

ITA Director appointment	BHTV – The HR has recently decided to re-establish the Commission for Indirect Taxation after new Director of the Indirect Taxation Administration was not appointed in the anticipated deadline. In spite of the fact that Fuad Kasumovic gained the support and trust of BiH Prime Minister, the HR returned the process of electing the Chairman to its start after this candidate did not pass the checks of the IC. “There were some misunderstandings between the election and the assessment procedures. I had very sincere intentions of appointing a person that is able to establish the Indirect Taxation Administration. I am convinced that Mr. Kasumovic is a good man for this job. Unfortunately, I was unable to find common language with the HR,” stated BiH Prime Minister Adnan Terzic. He added that he was expecting the appointment of the Chairman in two or three weeks. OHR spokesman Vedran Persic stated the following: “Taking under consideration various difficulties that occurred during this process, the HR supported the initiative of the Chairman of the Commission on re-announcing the competition.”
DNS on indirect taxation policy	Nezavisne Novine, cover and pg. 4, ‘Parliament majority betrayed people’ – Democratic National Alliance (DNS) Vice President and representative in the RS National Assembly, Hadzi-Jovan Mitrovic, is of the view that the voting for the Law on indirect taxation at the latest Republika Srpska National Assembly session represents an act of crime and grand betrayal of the people. According to him, the transfer of authority over taxes could not have been passed prior to change of the Republika Srpska Constitution. He also expressed disagreement with the proposed law on defence reform, noting that he has never seen more shameful speech ever than the one given by the Republika Srpska President, Dragan Cavic, at RS NA session.
Roundtable on Corporate Governance	Oslobodjenje pg. 6 ‘The problem of corruption and tax evasion’, Dnevni Avaz pg. 2 ‘How to head companies?’, Nezavisne Novine, pg. 3, ‘Hays on special audit reports’, FENA, ONASA – Representatives of BiH and Entity ministries, together with international and BiH legal experts, will participate at a roundtable on Corporate Governance, on Monday at the Sarajevo University Law Faculty. Transformation of power sector in BiH	Dnevni List (front and page 7, "Will three Elektroprivredas remain?", by Ivica Glibusic ) – the daily asked the CEO of Elektroprivreda of Herzeg-Bosnia (EP HZ HB), Vlado Maric, to comment on the Proposal of law on establishment of company for transmission of electricity in BiH, as prepared by the BiH Council of Ministers, and whether the establishment of the transmission company marks the beginning of abolishment of the three Elektroprivredas in BiH, to which Maric replied: "It is not the abolishment of elektroprivredas, it is establishment of single transmission company at BiH level, the transmission is being extracted from the three elektroprivredas and a single company at BiH level, with the seat in Banja Luka, is being formed". Questioned whether there is a possibility to have a merger of the three elektroprivredas in BiH in times to come, Maric says the Action plan envisages the merger, adding that it all depends on the politics, despite warnings and arguments by some experts, which tried to prove it would not be a good solution. DL also notes that the three Unions of the BiH elektroprivredas already made it clear that they did not want the merger.

If it turns out that BiH gained the support from Brussels, it can start the negotiations on concluding an agreement on stabilisation and joint, which is one of the most significant steps on the path towards EU. "The questions were mostly related to political situation and economical situation. Other questions were sector-based and covered practically every field of life in BiH (trade, freedom of movement, education, health, transport, media, judiciary, and so on)," stated Chairman of the BiH Office for European Integrations Osman Topcagic. EC spokesman Frane Maroevic stated the following: "The EC doesn't expect that BiH has made such progress sufficient for joining EU. Circle 99: BiH society heading towards major catastrophe	BHTV, Oslobodjenje front page, pg. 3 'Three national political parties traced disaster', Dnevni List page 2, "BiH society is hurtling towards disaster of widest proportions", Vecernji List (page 2, "Krug 99: Cold war of two entities is on", FENA - The BiH society is heading towards a major catastrophe if current international strategies of resolving the crisis in BiH continue, Sarajevo University Professor Gajo Sekulic said at a regular Circle 99 Independent Intellectuals Association's session in Sarajevo on Sunday. The catastrophe will happen if the reproduction of power of ethno-national parties is continued because to them Dayton is as endless gift ensuring their political power and reproduction, Sekulic said. He thinks that a counter power could exist if all players in the civic society radicalize their activities to limits of civic disobedience. He also said that we are witnessing a cold war in BiH between its two entities - the RS and Federation. "Today's imaginary BiH state is being compensated by the brutal help of the High Representative and an illusion is being created that he can rule for several more years and the currently governing BiH politicians 200 more years", Sekulic said and added that a lack of economic and social prospect is a result of political paralysis in BiH. He said that the Dayton Agreement provided long-term legitimacy to national parties and made possible the brotherly symbiosis of the three ethno-national groups at the same time preventing a civic option.
DL on situation in Mostar and HNC	Dnevni List (page 2, "Ashdown's lesson to local politicians", by Ivica Glibusic) carries an editorial talking about the situation regarding the process of Mostar restructuring and situation on functioning of the Herzegovina-Neretva Canton Government noting that political parties and local politicians in particular are making Mostar "a town case" although the war ended long time ago. In that context, the author wonders why there should be a special regime in Mostar, which is to be prepared by the Mostar Commission, a regime that is not applied anywhere else in the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. "We wonder how come the Bosniaks in Mostar are afraid of outvoting and seek special protection, whilst they are not ready to give the Croats in Travnik, Bugojno or Zenica the same?", asks the author. Regarding the situation on the Cantonal Government, the author believes that the last visit of the High Representative for BiH, Paddy Ashdown, to Mostar and the warning to the "whole HNC Government, especially to the Bosniak Ministers, to return to the Government and work to the benefit of the whole canton", will result in the situation that the budget beneficiaries will no longer live in fear that "some Minister will make a mad move and keep people in uncertainty whether they get the already earned salaries". The author's final message is dealing the Mostar issue saying that the HR Ashdown had given a lesson in Mostar when he sent a message that divisions were out of question and that local politicians should erase them from their heads. "It will be interesting to see whether the High Representative persists so Mostar be organized like other cities in the Federation of BiH", concludes the author.
Fatima Leho: There were no talks on division of Mostar	Dnevni Avaz pg. 4 'Fatima Leho: There were no talks on division of Mostar' - The President of the SDA Mostar City Board and a member of the Commission for Mostar Statute, Fatima Leho, denied media reports that she had offered the division of Mostar as a solution to HR Paddy Ashdown during his latest visit to the town. "At the meeting, which was also attended by the representatives of other political parties, I simply presented the position of my party, which is that the future organisation of Mostar must be in the spirit of Dayton. This means that the town is arranged on the principle of a strong city administration and budget, but that the local self-rule units continue to function with the rest of their authorities," Leho said.

Jutarnje Novine interview with SDA Vice-president Jahic	Jutarnje Novine (page 2, "We did not give recommendation to Ministers to leave session of HNC Government, by Mirsad Brkic) carries an interview with SDA Vice President Elmir Jahic. With regard to the crises in the Herzegovina-Neretva Canton Government, Jahic says: "Common ground between the HNC Prime Minister Miroslav Coric and HNC Minister of Finances Semin Boric must be found. Also, it is necessary to carry out payments in line with the law, especially the Law on Treasury." Asked whether they were informed about this problem on time, Jahic says that they were informed about it only after the problem emerged and added: "We did not give a recommendation that our Ministers leave the session of the HNC Government." Asked whether this means that the cooperation between the SDA Headquarters and HNC SDA is not the best, Jahic says: "At the beginning of this week we shall have the session of the SDA Presidency and certainly we shall make a stand with regard to this issue...The cooperation between the SDA Headquarters and HNC SDA exists. However, the one should bear in mind that this Canton has the most complicated political relations, having in mind the things that happened in the past. There are still intentions of some circles on what the future of this area should look like." Asked whether some additional measures will be taken, Jahic says: "We shall have to take an additional engagement towards this area." He added that there cannot be parallelisms in the work of the authority structures on the territory of this Canton any longer. Asked to comment on the journalist's conclusion saying that High Representative Paddy Ashdown harshly reacted to the move made by Bosniak Ministers and whether he believes that the HR might introduce sanctions if the problem is not resolved soon, Jahic says: "I am not aware of the possibility that the OHR introduces sanctions. I hope that this will not take place and I hope that this problem will be resolved soon."
Nezavisne Novine interview with SDA Vice-president Terzic	Nezavisne Novine, cover and pg. 8, 'SDA does not need the new leader' – In an interview to NN, the SDA Vice President and the Chairperson of BiH Council of Ministers, Adnan Terzic, comments on recent statement by Omer Behmen saying that the manner in which Behmen labelled him was common for SDA some years ago. Relations between HDZ Croatia and HDZ BiH on the eve of the Croatian elections	Vecernji List (page 5, "Barun, Radic and Zlomislic do not support Generals", by Z. Kresic) carries that Presidents of the Croat Associations resulting from Homeland War did not support the so-called Generals' list led by General Zeljko Glasnovic and they will give their final stand on this issue after the sessions of their leaderships take place in a next few days. VL goes on to say that the Associations are thinking to support the right wing in Croatia, that would take care of their interests again. VL explains that it was rather tense during the meeting which was held between the representatives of the aforementioned Associations and Generals in Grude on Saturday, and that the representatives of the Associations left the meeting. According to the article, a few high-ranked HDZ BiH officials also attended the meeting. President of HVIDRA Andjelko Braun stated: "We are disappointed over the behavior of the Croat leadership in BiH because elections can be crucial for all of us." VL also says that according to unofficial information, a part of the HDZ BiH leadership supported the Generals' list, while a considerable part of the HDZ BiH Presidency members do not think that way. Florijan Boras who stands good chances to be on the HDZ Croatia list for Diaspora stated that HDZ Croatia did not want to have Croat politicians on the list for Diaspora and added that this refers to both current and former Croat officials from BiH. According to Boras, HDZ Croatia does not want to control the politics of Croats in BiH any longer. He also revealed that HDZ starts its pre-election campaign in Sarajevo and most probably the pre-election rally in Mostar will take place on November 7. VL (page 11, " 'Generals' list against Sanader", by Z. Kresic) carries a similar article on this issue. Dnevni List (front and page 3, "Split only exists within part of HDZ BiH Presidency", by M. Relota) carries that HDZ BiH will not participate in making of the HDZ Croatia list for Diaspora because they are not satisfied with the positions on the list that were offered to them. Vjesnik (page 3, "HDZ BiH does not participate in making of the list for Diaspora", by A. Zornija) carries that HDZ BiH spokesperson Pero Pavlovic confirmed this information. Vjesnik also says that during the meeting between Sanader and Colak, Sanader did not want to place on the list Croat politicians from BiH removed by the High Representative because Sanader and his party do not need this kind of confrontation with the OHR. DL also says that a source close to the HDZ Croatia Presidency stated that the divisions only exist in the top of a part of the HDZ BiH Presidency. The source added that now it is too early to talk about the split of a part of the HDZ Croatia and HDZ BiH Presidencies, however, the official stand of the HDZ Croatia Presidency is that they count on the support of the HDZ BiH promised by HDZ BiH President Barisa Colak.
Interview with holder of HKDU and HCSP list for Croatian elections Zeljko Koroman	Vecernji List (page 5, "Ethnic border unacceptable", by I. Media
Avaz editorial on RTRS	Dnevni Avaz pg. 3 'RTRS' coming out from the darkness of the past' Commentary of the Day by Miso Vidovic (Avaz's correspondent from Banja Luka) - According to Vidovic, it is more than obvious that the current governing political parties in RS (SDS, PDP) seek to regain control of RTRS. "The current RTRS leadership, if it want a genuine democratisation of the media space in RS, must carry out fundamental professional reforms and, at the same time, it must relieve itself from fear of ungrounded government's requests," concludes Vidovic.

OHR on PDP response to Braithwaite's criticism against Mikerevic	Nezavisne Novine, pg. 3, 'Republika Srpska Government jeopardised the OHR integrity' – The OHR Spokesperson, Vedran Persic, yesterday stated that the Republika Srpska Government could expect from OHR to respond in the same manner if Government jeopardised the integrity of OHR ever again. Persic reacted upon the statement by Dragan Mikerevic, Republika Srpska Prime Minister, who said that the OHR Chief Spokesperson, Julian Braithwaite, in his statement used "non-diplomatic vocabulary, which is beyond limitations of good taste".

On top of that, the report allegedly says that the HR has been informed that the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina (FBiH) Government has not transferred the money for the employees of the FBiH Mol, which work under the Director of the FBiH Mol, Zlatko Miletic, for three months already.
