Education
OHR South on education reform	Dnevni list (p 15, "Benes: We expect implementation of administrative changes by end of week", by D. Cro press on education issues	Dnevni List (page 13, by Vesna Leto, “Announced strike unifies principals of Croat and Bosniak schools”) – it is worth to note that the HNC Minister of Education, Jago Musa, together with an “OSCE representative for education”, held a meeting with school principals of elementary and secondary schools in HNC. Minister Musa noted that this was the first time in ten years that school principals of schools that work according to the Croat and Bosniak curriculum meet each other. The same papers (front and page 13, “Education workers go on strike on September 1”, by Vesna Leto) reports that representatives of Unions of education workers, namely Josip Milic, Slavko Laus, Omer Spaho and Jasna Sunje, had a meeting with Minister Musa and his associates yesterday. According to Josip Milic, the (HNC) Government has nothing adequate to offer to the Unions stressing that the essence of the problem is the collective agreement. “Their constant excuse is filling of the budget. We are not interested in that”, says Milic adding that the Government should step down if it is incapable of filling the budget. Milic goes on to say that the Unions are being offered a general collective agreement which applies to all budget beneficiaries, but according to Milic, it is the branch collective agreement that matters and which the Unions insist on. Minister Musa is quoted as saying that the announced strike of education workers cannot go ahead because the procedural pre-requisites are not met. Slobodna Dalmacija (page 16, by Darko Juka, “Puppets in municipality”) – says that a decision on the unification of two Mostar grammar schools was not adopted by the Municipal Council of Mostar’s Municipality Southwest although the unification was to be carried out in accordance with instructions issued by the HNC PM, Miroslav Coric, and Education Minister Musa. According to Juka, it is clear that the OHR and OSCE originally ordered the HDZ top, namely Barisa Colak and Dragan Covic, to implement the decision, who passed on the order to “junior puppets”. Furthermore, Juka says that not even the Mostar Bishop, Ratko Peric, could influence the HDZ top. According to SD’s “reliable sources”, Bishop Peric warned Colak and Covic that in case that the unification takes place, the priests will from altars label them as traitors of the Croat people.

Popara expects that there will be no unpleasantness at Wednesday’s “five players, folklore and ethno-music fair” and Thursday’s patron saint’s day of the Pale municipality, “whose residents are used to SFOR’s presence”. However, the RS police has asked SFOR to reduce its presence and activities during the holidays. Nezavisne Novine, pg. 2- ‘SFOR sets up check points in Pale’, Glas Srpske, pg.3 – ‘Patrols in the streets’ also covered the issue.
