	Nezavisne Novine (p 5) reports that the High Representative, Paddy Ashdown, testified before the Hague	yesterday before the Hague Tribunal in the trial to Radoslav Brdjanin, who is indicted for Tribunal	genocide, crimes against humanity, severe breaches of Geneva convention and violations of customs of war. Ashdown testified on his visit to BiH and detention camps in Manjaca and Trnopolje, in August 1992. Ashdown said that he came to Bosnia after the invitation of Radovan Karadzic, and that at the time of his arrival he only knew about detention camps in Omarska and Keraterm, that he learned about Manjaca detention camp upon his arrival to the country. At the end of his testimony, Ashdown said he does not remember that he heard the name of Radoslav Brdjanin during the visit and that the permission for visiting detention camps should be issued by him.
removing obstacles	"Inhuman treatment in prison camps Manjaca and Trnopolj") and Slobodna Dalmacija (page to private business	7, "Ashdown: I saw inhuman treatment in prison camps") covered the OHR press release on the testimony that Paddy Ashdown, the High Representative, gave in The Hague.
	The Head of OHR Banja Luka, Graham Day, stated on Wednesday that the High Christian Schwartz-	Representative to BiH, Paddy Ashdown, intends to annul all laws, provisions and rulebooks Schilling's visit to	that prevent development of private entrepreneurship (Glas Srpski, p 2). After the meeting
Banja Luka	with representatives of small and medium enterprises in Banja Luka Chamber of Commerce, Day also stated that the High Representative wants to encourage just tax system, resembling the one accepted in countries that went through transition successfully.
	According to Day, the main goal of the "bulldozer" initiative is to remove all obstacles that CRO press on SFOR	prevent development and work of small and medium enterprises.
hunt for war	The international mediator for BiH, Christian Schwartz Schilling visited Banja Luka on criminals in Croatia	Wednesday where he met with the RS President, Dragan Cavic, and the Chairman of the Executive Board of SNSD, Nebojsa Radmanovic (Nezavisne Novine, p 7, Glas Srpski, p 3) Speaking about the implementation of property laws, Schwarz Schilling said that the results reached in the RS in last two years are impressive but "there are still things that need to be done".
	In its research as to who SFOR and OHR actually address via their advertisements containing the message: "War crimes indictees, we are searching for you", which have "flooded" newspapers in Croatia (Globus, page 36, "Arrest Warrant from Cover Pages – SFOR "hunting" in Croatia?", by Gordan Malic ), Globus wonders if the advertisements represent a threat to General Gotovina. The weekly quotes SFOR PIO officer, Dave Asscoti, as saying: "It is true that SFOR does not have authorities in Croatia, yet it is our mandate to arrest war criminals, including propaganda-psychological activities related to that, so the advertisement could Vjesnik on IC policy	refer to those fugitives who are Croatian citizens but are hiding in BiH. At the moment, the in BiH	only known Croatian fugitive is General Gotovina and, should he appear on the territory in which we have the jurisdiction, it is our duty to arrest him and hand him over to the ICTY".
	The advertisement at first glance seems like an ICTY one, but it is about SFOR one that has been published in BiH media and put in public places for years. This is about typical special war that SFOR and OHR lead against war criminals and those who protect them. When it comes to the biggest fugitives, the action did not bear any fruit, just like "Mirko" magazine which unsuccessfully lobbied for pacifism, organized crime combat and nationalism in BiH.
	Reminding of a number of war criminals arrested by SFOR, Globus notes a couple of aborted SFOR attempts to arrest Radovan Karadzic, due to which SFOR leaders are often the target of BiH media but also of the ICTY Prosecutors' Office. Publishing of psychological-propaganda ads in Croatia seems pointless from that perspective but can also be seen as a slap in the face to the Croatian authorities who have so far not taken promotional activities of this kind.
	SFOR has, on a number of occasions, informed Croatian investigative bodies that the fugitive Croatian General is moving along the BiH border belt, yet Gotovina has not been arrested to date. It is paradoxical that the international military forces do not arrest Gotovina on the territory of the country in which they act, but they do pay advertisements in the country in which they have no jurisdiction at all.
	Vjesnik (page 4) carries an editorial signed by Ivan Sabic , who says that the International Community believes that strengthening of the central institutions is long-term way out for BiH. The editorial says: "In order to improve the situation, the IC chose a long and slow way, with unclear and uncertain result, thus refusing initiatives that imply more radical moves - forming of the third entity or cantonization of the whole BiH." The editorial also says that the changes will not go smoothly, especially when the status of the RS is in question, and the fact that not only SDS and Serb radicals left the constituting session of the BiH Parliament, but also representatives who come from the line of moderate parties proves it.

	eadership. SDA's Muhamed Ibrahimovic is the new Chairman, HNZ/HDZ coalition candidate osip Merdzo is elected as Deputy Chairman while the Chairman representing Serbs and ecretary of the House were not elected. ecernji List, p 2, by E. Medunjanin , Dnevni List, p 5, and Slobodna Dalmacija, last page, also eported on the issue.
	ccording to Vecernji List, after the inaugural session, Donald Hays, the Principle Deputy ligh Representative, held a meeting with Presidents of Caucuses of political parties who articipate in the work of the BiH Federation Parliament House of Representatives. According o VL, Hays warned the Presidents of the Caucuses that it is necessary to adopt the ederation budget for 2003 as soon as possible and he called on them to work efficiently.
	onstituting session of the Herceg Bosna Cantonal Assembly, Dragan Bagaric, who was the 20,000 HVO invalids 🛛	Sovernor of this Canton, was appointed the President of the Canton 10 Assembly. Jasenko
$\mathbf{f}_{\mathbf{h}}$	ufekdzic and Slobodanka Grubor were appointed his Deputies. Also Mate Franjicevic, Mate ankovic, Jasenko Tufekcic and Vlatko Zrilic were appointed representatives in the House of eoples.
11	5) carry that over 20 000 HVO invalids will block all roads in the BiH Federation and border rossings towards Croatia if they do not get overdue disability allowances. Andjelko Barun, he President of Association of HVO Homeland War Invalids of Croat Republic of Herceg sosna stated that the blockade will last until they receive the overdue disability allowances.
	'L says that Homeland War Victims informed OHR about moves of Suada Hadzovic, the linister in charge of issues of soldiers and war invalids, who, according to HVIDRA members, aused this situation.
D	Dnevni List (p 8) carries the letter which, among other things, reads that this Association's nembers are surprised with and concerned about the behaviour and decisions of some of th	he Municipal Council Councillors and a part of the IC pertaining to the erection of the Mostar m	nonument to the killed Croat defenders. At the moment when only the exclusiveness of osniaks, whose representatives do not take part in the municipal bodies of authority, is ouder than the messages of peace that are daily sent from the mosque of spite, the Islamic community's Medzlis from Stolac in their letter offend all the well-intentioned Stolac citizens. he Medzlis's unrealistic requests, which are in advance known to be impossible to accept, eem to be co-ordinated with the obstructions in the Municipal Council's work by the Bosniak epresentatives who re-activate spiritual exclusiveness, intolerance and hatred. They aim to ave Stolac constantly perceived as isolated from its surroundings and aim at sotonising the croats of Stolac. For them, the Turkish conquering is the only measure on which one is to uild co-existence between the 2 peoples, which is something that Bosniak mentors from lostar and Sarajevo, as well as international "spiritual tutors" who so much care for us but o nothing for this municipality, which they call a Zoo, advocate. Concluding that the final oal seems to be maintaining status quo and letting the past, to which Stolac Croats are roud of, be forgotten, the Association members say they are not ready for such co-xistence.
I	Dnevni List (p2, by lvica Glibusic ), gives an overview of post-war contradictions in Mostar aying that it was Bosniaks who, immediately after the war, advocated unification of the own whereas Croat representatives advocated a number of Municipalities with either osniak or Croat majority. The IC at the time reacted to some moves in the western part of I	he town, calling them destructive. But, it did not take long before one reached out for new olutions and Bosniaks, with the assistance of the IC and domestic media, exerted pressures eading to unification. HDZ opposing lead to an even greater distance between the East and he West. Abolishment of Cantons with special regime intensified realisation of that u	nification, but Deputy Mayor Tomic's latest proposal to have the town organised as a single lunicipality is now opposed by Mostar Bosniak politicians who now claim it is out of question as	s Croats would dominate the town in that case. Thus we have experienced the turns of both osniak and Croat policy in Mostar, both of which have gone from one extreme to another ut could not find a common ground. There is still a long and tough struggle for a unified, ormal town that would be governed by its citizens and not somebody else, ahead of M	lostar.

The SDS announced that the SNSD leader, Milorad Dodik, rejected the offer of the RS President, Dragan Cavic, to gather three strongest parties in RS and create stable majority in the Parliament.
