Franjic to be appointed BiH Federation Finance Minister by Friday, the appointment to be confirmed by the Parliament next Tuesday

The President of the NHI, Kresimir Zubak on Wednesday officially informed BiH Federation Prime Minister Alija Behmen on the nomination of Franjo Franjic for the vacant position of the entity Finance Minister. Behmen is expected to immediately deliver the proposal to the BiH Federation President Safet Halilovic and Vice-president Karlo Filipovic, who are authorized for the appointment. "In principle, any nomination should be considered by the Alliance for Change Coordination as well, but since it is about a specific case and a necessity that the Finance Minister is appointed as soon as possible, we will act under the urgent procedure," Halilovic told Oslobodjenje (Almir Terzic – front page). The BiH Federation Parliament is expected to confirm the appointment at an early session scheduled for next Tuesday. (Dnevni Avaz – p 2, Jutarnje Novine – p 6, Vecernji List – p 5)

"The new Finance Minister is being nominated almost on a private basis, without any prior consultations within the Alliance Coordination," Chairman of the Alliance for Change Coordination Stjepan Kljucic said in an interview with Dnevni Avaz (p 5)

Ljiljana Petricevic wrote editorial in Dnevni List (page 2) about Zubak's last move, appointment of Franjo Franjic for new Minister of Finances. The author said: "With removal of Nikola Grabovac from political life many were speculating Alliance's falling apart. The key move was expected from NHI, i.e. Kresimir Zubak. ... If we remember what happened after HDZ withdrew its officials from institutions of the system, we can conclude that Zubak did not want to have such luxury. He must continue this political game", writes the author.

Paddy Ashdown holds a "Town Hall" meeting with citizens of Siroki Brijeg at Hotel "Royal"

Dnevni Avaz (Sead Numanovic – p 2) report that the High Representative, Paddy Ashdown, on Wednesday ended a three-hour "Town Hall" meeting with around 50 citizens of Siroki Brijeg, delivering them a message that they should leave the past and hatred behind for the better future of their children. "This unique political event in BiH was marked by open questions and positions presented by the citizen," Numanovic wrote.

Vecernji List (front page, under title "High Representative among Croats: Paddy Ashdown fawns upon", page 3, under title "Ashdown's new mission towards Croats in BiH), Slobodna Dalmacija (last page "Future without reforms – difficult") and Dnevni List (pages 4, "State institutions to be set up pursuant to world norms" and 7) carry articles on the visit of the High Representative Paddy Ashdown to Bugojno, Livno and Siroki Brijeg.

Vecernji List (page 3) carries an editorial by Miro Bosnjak in which he says: "Whilst people in this odd country speak in the name of people, the new High Representative for BiH Paddy Ashdown embarks on a mission of unveiling of thoughts of common people. He convinces all the peoples and citizens into his good intentions. His first move sees the removal of finance minister, a Croat Nikola Grabovac, First time lucky, people would say, but the common people have an opinion on that move too".

Vecernji List features a rather negative article signed by Zdenko Jurilj in which he says that the HR is trying to erase the burden of "the Croat(ian) enemy" after he had testified against the HVO General Blaskic and revealed the existence of the "Tudjman's napkin" by trying to explain yesterday that he was going to work to the benefit of all three peoples in BiH. Jurilj notes that the latest removal of Nikola Grabovac does not help his conception of building a better image with the Croats.

Dnevni List features a rather positive article by Ilija Sagolj in which he says that Ashdown is truly applying different working methods when compared to his predecessors. "For Herzegovina, which has been avoided my majority of international representatives, this visit only shows a good will of the High Representative to open this area and wake it up from the state of deadness".

Minister Anic says he is prepared to resign if dismissed soldiers do not receive their payments (10,000 KM per person)

"The problems have already appeared, because, according to the information I am receiving from the field, 3,000 dismissed soldiers are every day going to the banks, but there are no promised money on their accounts," the BiH Federation Defense Minister, Mijo Anic, told Dnevni Avaz (front page, continued on p 3).

ICTY delegation meets with RS leadership, representatives of RS judiciary

After the meeting the RS President, Mirko Sarovic, told press that the RS leadership supported the idea that certain number of war crimes cases should be transferred to entity courts, stressing that the RS judiciary is reformed enough to try these cases, while the ICTY

President Claude Jorda said one of the options, which is in line with the Constitution and has the support of the High Representative, is that a special panel within the Court of BiH tries war crimes cases. As for the RS's cooperation with the ICTY, Jorda said that some progress has been made but that the issue of apprehension of indicted war criminals still remains to be resolved. ICTY Spokespersons Jim Landale and Florence Hartman told a news conference in Banja Luka yesterday that certain number of medium and lower level war crimes cases will be transferred to the local courts only when the local judiciary adopts the highest European standards and when local legislation is harmonized with the ICTY rules. Landale also said that this would not be possible unless local authorities start arresting indicted war criminals such as Radovan Karadzic and Ratko Mladic. Hartman said that according to the information, which the ICTY has, Ratko Mladic is hiding in Serbia while Radovan Karadzic is in the RS. The reputation of the SDS and the RS is in line"*, said Kalinic.

Glas Srpski (page 2) quotes DNS Chairman Dragan Kostic as saying at a news conference in Banja Luka yesterday that the Sarovic-Ivanic meeting on Monday showed that they just want to buy some more time so that corrupt officials can get away with what they have done and that Ivanic does not have the strength to persevere in fight against crime and corruption. Kostic also said that the SDS would try to force the RS Tax Administration Director Milica Bisic to resign.
