Acting High Representative Louis J. Crishock visits Banja Luka

Acting High Representative Louis J. Crishock concluded a two-day visit to Banja Luka, where he met with representatives of the institutions of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Government of Republika Srpska, the opposition, civil society and all three constituent peoples.

The Acting High Representative underscored that the Office of the High Representative maintains an open dialogue with all political stakeholders across Bosnia and Herzegovina. Engaging with representatives of different political parties, institutions, and communities is an essential part of OHR's mandate and reflects its commitment to Bosnia and Herzegovina's citizens and its future.

"The Office of the High Representative speaks with everyone and listens to everyone. Our commitment is to the full implementation of the Dayton Peace Agreement and to supporting the institutions and constitutional framework that safeguard peace, stability, and the future of Bosnia and Herzegovina," said Crishock.

During the meetings, Crishock reiterated OHR's unwavering support for the constitutional and legal order established by the Dayton Peace Agreement. He stressed the importance of dialogue, respect for the rule of law, and responsible leadership in preserving stability and building a better future for Bosnia and Herzegovina.
