Yugoslavia

NATO planes hit more than 30 targets in the Federal Republic Yugoslavia last night. NATO officials announced that the weather conditions were the reason for canceling some of the morning missions. Some of the targets were roads, oil refineries, airports and radar systems. Today, NATO asked from Bulgaria the air corridor for its strikes. The decision will be made by the Bulgarian Parliament.

Kosovo – refugees

Kosovo Albanians are entering Albania, a thousand of them during an hour. The exodus is continuing with the same intensity towards Macedonia as well. The UN Officials announced that only a quarter of the Kosovo Albanians' population, since the beginning of arm conflicts, has stayed in Kosovo.

Reactions

The USA President, Bill Clinton, said in an interview to The Sunday Times that deep transformation in Serbia was necessary for solving the Kosovo crisis. An idea on sending ground troops to Kosovo is more present recently. According to some statements of the NATO officials, they did not reach common ground on this yet. The NATO Secretary General, Javier Solana, said that present strategy of the Alliance in Kosovo is an air campaign but he did not reject a possibility of sending ground troops. The Special USA Envoy for Kosovo, James Perdue, said that President Clinton stated clearly that we would not employ ground troops in the moment. The Russian chief of diplomacy, Igor Ivanov, said that they had precise information that the operation of sending ground troops in Kosovo is being prepared.

Sarajevo

The Albanians' Association Sarajevo "Bajram Curi" in Sarajevo, warned that living conditions of a large group of Kosovo Albanians, who came to Sarajevo on April 15 and 16, were very hard.
