The High Representative welcomes the report of the Venice commission as a serious and heavy weight contribution to the debate on future BiH, in which the increased functionality of the state should be the context of decrease of High Representative's powers.

BiH politicians comments on possible reduction of
authorities

Dnevni Avaz pg 2 'Tokic: Extreme left and right mind HR', mentioned on cover 'Extremists mind HR' by A. Malagic – At the conference in Milan, PDP President Mladen Ivanic stood for abolishment of current High Representative's authorities by the end of the year, while SDA President Sulejman Tihic believes that the authorities should not be reduced without the change of current constitutional organization of BiH. President of SBiH Presidency Safet Halilovic believes that those who want obstruction of the Dayton Peace Accord or his selective change mind existence of the HR. Dobrica Jonjic from NHI believes that the Bonn's authorities of the HR are too big, however, state institutions are not ready yet to take over responsibility for future BiH. Sejfudin Tokic from SDU believes that the presence of the International Community is necessary until BiH harmonizes its constitutional and legal system with European standards. SDA Secretary General Sefik Dzaferovic stated that BiH still needs the OHR and HR. SNSD Secretary General Igor Radojicic stands for gradual reduction of the authorities which should be completed by the next year at the latest.

TV Hayat – RS political parties say that BiH Constitution should not be changed but that the HR's powers should certainly be reduced. They stress out that there is no reason for RS to be referred to as the one that obstructs. "We once more repeat that there are 160 ministries, but only 16 are in RS", said SDS representative, Bosko Siljegovic. "Domestic political forces have to be in charge of BiH and in that sense they should seek for solutions by which the HR should end his mandate. As soon as we manage to do that, chances to improve economic activities and development are greater", said PDP representative, Dragan Mikerevic.

Commission
recommendations

RS Ombudsman Vitomir Popovic says the fact BiH is comprised of several levels of the authority cannot be seen as an obstacle for the admission to EU and says some other EU members, such as Germany, also have a complex structure. Miroslav Mikes shares his view and mentions Belgium, Great Britain and Austria as examples. Professor at Banja Luka Faculty of Laws Petar Kunic agrees with conclusions of the Venice Commission by saying that F BiH Cantons are making the situation more complex and he says the Cantons should be abolished. He, however, thinks the conclusion recommending abolishment of ethnic veto was disputable and says this was only a proof of poor knowledge of political and ethnic structure of BiH.

Nezavisne Novine pg 2 'BiH institutions should take the responsibility' by S. Gojkovic and R. Cengic – carries a statement of HR Paddy Ashdown with regard to the Venice Commission conclusions as well as reactions of several politicians. HDZ Spokesperson Pero Pavlovic and SDS Spokesperson Slavko Pivasevic did not want to comment on this matter. Party for BiH thinks Venice Commission recommendations should be followed.

In that sense, we appreciate the fact that it is up to BiH citizens to coordinate their constitution with time during which trust between citizens should be established, but we are sure that it is going to be a long-lasting period of adjusting. The first thing, which should be done is for the constitution to be coordinated so to present BiH reality. This is the main conclusion, although there are differences in opinions between certain political parties", said PDP representative, Dragan Mikerevic.

TV Pink feature story on RS Council for Protection of Vital National Interests	TV Pink Ljubisa Davidovic – RS Constitutional Court is going to decide whether the Council for protection of national vital interests is going to start its work with all its members or whether it will lack a Bosniak judge. The High Representative, Paddy Ashdown, ordered the Court to create the Council, by March 15. The HR decided to do so in order for cases such as the Alijagic one, to be solved as soon as possible. After RS Parliament had adopted certain laws, which suspend payment for war compensation, Bosniak Caucus within RS Council of Peoples asked for vital national interest to be protected, by which implementation of the laws has been blocked. The Court should decide whether the interests had been endangered. But the Council still has not started being functional since it has not got a Bosniak judge. In an opened letter SDA sent to RS Constitutional Court, SDA stated that it hoped that the Court, if started work without Bosniak judge, which opposed the law, was going to be professional and impartial.

VL: Double standards in FBiH when it comes to companies incurring debts, honouring financial obligations

Vecernji List, front pg splash and pg 3 'State is paying Energopetrol's debt', by Zoran Kresic – Speaking about the 'Energopetrol' case, a Sarajevo-based FBiH-owned company that sells oil and oil derivatives and which has incurred some 100 million KMs of debts, the daily notes the case is an example of double standards that are being applied in BiH where the only criteria is whether a company is situated in the Bosniak or Croat-majority part of the FBiH. VL explains that the debt the company has incurred is double the debt the Lijanovics have allegedly caused in the affairs involving them (the Lijanovics), still the Bosniak ministers in the FBiH Government, especially the FBiH Minister of Industry, Izet Zigic, are lobbying that the state takes over the majority of the debt. To explain the extent of the lobbying, VL notes that the then Director of Financial Police in Sarajevo, Mirsad Barjaktarevic, in 2001 refused to act upon the order of the then FBiH Finance Minister, Dragan Covic, and start the collection of debt.

DL interview: PDHR Hays on economic situation in BiH	Dnevni List, pgs 6-7, mentioned on front ‘Sales tax is dividing BiH’, by Danka Polovina-Mandic – Carries an interview with outgoing Principal Deputy High Representative, Donald Hays, in which he, among other issues, comments on the current economic situation in BiH. PDHR Hays notes that the economic situation is not completely catastrophic as some people suggest, however he notes that the situation would have been even better if politicians had not interfered into the privatization, running of public companies etc. “Part of it (economic situation) is a result of political obstruction, and a part of it is a consequence of lack of economic knowledge of those who were in power. For example, we recently introduced the VAT, whilst the excise and customs have been transferred onto the state level. But still we have the sale tax that is dividing the country. Such issues undermine the country’s efforts to attract investors who will bring investments. Also, there are pressures on courts and their decisions. As long as these issue are not changed, there is no way to attract serious businesspeople who would engage into business operations”, says PDHR Hays.

Terzic: IMF conditions stand-by arrangement with new requests	Dnevni List, pg 2 ‘Means from GSM licence, salaries and loans disputable’, by Danka Polovina-Mandic – According to the Chairman of BiH Council of Ministers, Adnan Terzic, although everything was, in general, agreed regarding the signing of this year’s stand-by arrangement with the IMF (50 million US$), the IMF changed some terms just few days before the signing of the agreement to which the BiH authorities cannot agree because the IMF did not provide valid arguments. Among several changes, Terzic says although it was agreed after seven months of negotiations that the salaries at the state level (budget beneficiaries) should be reduced by 10%, the IMF now requests that the salaries be reduced by 15%. According to Terzic, this request could hinder the functioning of state bodies and BiH efforts to assume responsibility.

Covic Case

VL: Covic to meet state secretary of Holy See Sodano, perhaps even the Pope – prosecution of Croat officials might be on the agenda	Vecernji List, pg 2 ‘Covic in Rome with Sodano about political pressures’, by Zoran Kresic – VL learns from sources close to the Catholic Church that the Croat member of BiH Presidency, Dragan Covic, will be talking in the next 15 days to the state secretary of the Holy See, Cardinal Angelo Sodano, and perhaps even to the Pope himself, should the Pope’s medical situation permit. VL: High-profile cases to justify money spent on reform to judiciary in BiH

Vecernji List, pg 5 'Rigged processes in order to justify reform to judiciary', by Zoran Kresic – Talking about high-profile judicial cases in BiH, such as the 'Croat self-rule' and the case involving the Croat member of BiH Presidency, Dragan Covic, and the President of BiH Constitutional Court, Mate Tadic, the author notes that when it comes to the former, the key problem is that the Prosecution needed four years to realize that several persons are not guilty of charges they were charged with. When it comes to cases of Covic and Tadic, the author writes that after four years of pressures and blackmails, after which the two did not want to "cooperate", the persecution intensified. The author goes on to say that "only through the process against the Head of State and President of Constitutional Court, the money invested into the 'reform of judiciary', hiring of well-paid foreigners in the BiH Court and Prosecution can be justified, as well as the money spent on the four-year long story on the Croat self-rule as criminal organization".

DL: Situation with Tadic is bigger disgrace than with Covic	Dnevni List, pg 2 'Disgrace', by Nermin Bise – Commenting on the indictment against Dragan Covic, the Lijanovics and Mate Tadic, the author notes that the focus of the media is the Croat member of BiH Presidency, whilst Tadic, as the President of the BiH Constitutional Court, has only been incidentally mentioned. According to the author, the fact that the President of the Constitutional Court is to be brought to justice is even a bigger disgrace than the indictment against the Head of State.
Dnevni Avaz: Who will replace Covic?	Dnevni Avaz pg 3 'Who will replace Covic?' Commentary of the Day by Sead Numanovic – According to Numanovic, there are different views inside HDZ BiH on who might replace Dragan Covic in the office of Croat member of the BiH Presidency bearing in mind that the day of his leaving the office in one way or another (resignation or removal) is closer and closer. Numanovic says that Martin Raguz, the senior HDZ official and member of the state parliament, would obviously be the best solution for the international community. However, some inside the party oppose such the possibility. There is an option to appoint Ivo Miro Jovic, who would be, according to Numanovic, a sort of Croat Paravac in the BiH Presidency (NOTE: such comparison probably refers to Paravac's incompetence, nationalistic attitude making him a politician easy to be manipulated).

Defence

NATO Commander Schook: Accusations against BiH Army Brigadier Cikotic were false

Oslobodjenje pg 3, mentioned on cover 'Cikotic removed from Army by mistake' by S. Hodzic – The article says that Commander of the NATO's Headquarters in BiH General Steven Schook sent an unusual letter to retired Brigadier Selmo Cikotic in which he informed Cikotic that all claims because of which Cikotic's candidacy for the position of the Head of the Joint Headquarters of the BiH armed forces was disputed last year, were incorrect. Osl. says that Cikotic was also retired at that time and as reason for the measures taken against him SFOR stated 'possible responsibility for war crimes'. In the aforementioned letter Schook also stressed that Cikotic can be appointed in state institutions now, however, Osl. says that there is no a single, vacant position for Bosniak Generals at the moment. According to the article, Bosniak member of the BiH Presidency Sulejman Tihic offered Cikotic the position of General Rasim Delic (he used to be Tihic's advisor for military issues), however, Cikotic did not accept this offer for the time being.
