RTRS – High Representative Paddy Ashdown traveled to Washington on Saturday. On Monday, he will meet with the World Bank Director and US Secretary of Defense. CoM Chairman Adnan Terzic, BiH Minister of Foreign Affairs Mladen Ivanic and the BH Central Bank Governor Peter Nicholl are also visiting Washington. Paddy Ashdown has criticized BH authorities for over spending. He said that the country could not spend that much money on administration and so little on the people, at first place on investments and opening of new posts; and stressed it was ridiculous to have political structures spending all the money, while they could not pay teachers. Paddy Ashdown will inform the World Bank Director on the economic reforms that have to be implemented while the international community could finance them. Reforms will also include BH armies. For RTRS, Ashdown says that BH goes through reforms which mark the beginning of process leading towards Atlantic and European integrations, and adds that would be only possible if there is willingness to reform army structures and reduce them to the level acceptable to BH budget. After this visit, High Representative will travel to London and will also participate EU summit to be held in the Thessaloniki. On the issue of the ICC, High Representative said he was sure there would be no problems following BH rejection to adopt recommendation made by European Commission not to ratify agreement with USA on ICC. He adds that Europe understands the situation of Bosnia and Herzegovina in this regard.

Political developments

HNC Government formation	Dnevni Avaz pg. 4 ‘HNC Government to be appointed today?’ – If today, Mirsad Kebo and Sefik Dzaferovic, the members of the SDA Presidency, succeed to convince their partisan colleagues, who are deputies to the HNC Assembly, that the establishment of the cantonal government is their common political goal, a several month long political crisis related to functioning of the HNC executive authorities might be overcome. The SDA leadership tasked Dzaferovic and Kebo with the issue, and they are expected to attend today’s session of the SDA caucus in the HNC Assembly. In the course of the day, the Assembly will hold its session with the formation of the cantonal government as the only item on the agenda. Dnevni Avaz pg. 4 ‘Racic: I was nominated by representatives of all three peoples’ – Dusan Racic is the candidate for the HNC Health and Social Welfare Minister, which is the only post in the government foreseen for Serbs. His name, however, has come in the focus of public interest during the past days due to the opposition of certain parties to his appointment. “I have been nominated for the post by representatives of all three peoples,” Racic told the newspaper, adding that the problem was in a fact the only member of the Serb caucus in the cantonal Assembly had not met him before and therefore knew nothing about his capabilities. Vecernji List (front “Party for BiH against appointment of HNC Government” and page 3 “Party for BiH protects Serb interest”, by Zoran Kresic) – an anti Party for BiH (SBiH) article in which the author criticizes the SBiH for not supporting the appointment of the Herzegovina-Neretva Canton (HNC) Government saying the SBiH is obstructing the appointment by manipulating its Serb MP in the HNC Assembly, Vesna Katanic, and the Serb Civic Council (SGV). Moreover VL says the SGV has with its latest statement shown to be an instrument of the Bosniak circles in Mostar adding that positions of the SGV, SBiH and SDA are identical i.e. aimed at preserving divisions and parallelisms in the process of formation of HNC Government and Mostar restructuring. When it comes to Vesna Katanic, the only Serb MP in the HNC Assembly, the author claims she made it to the Assembly owing it to the Bosniak votes. In that context, the author says Katanic was voted for by only 286 people from her constituency (Konjic) saying she could hardly be a legitimate representative of the Serbs in the HNC. Dnevni List page 5 – Questioned to comment on establishment of the Herzegovina-Neretva Canton Government, OHR Spokesman Mario Brkic says: “We sincerely hope the politicians in the HNC will get smarter and form the government. Apart from that there is not an alternative solution because too much has been spent (...) Parties must honor obligations they have taken upon themselves.” Nezavisne Novine, page 7, ‘Party for BiH offers “its” minister of Serb nationality’ – As a way-out from the crisis related to the establishment of the government of Heretva Herzegovina Canton, Party for BiH suggested that Club of the Serb delegates at the Cantonal Assembly should propose the Minister of Serb nationality.

Interview with NHI's Kresimir Zubak	Dnevni List (front and page 7, by Pejo Gasparevic, "New authority will not have strength to stop social unrest") – an interview with the President of New Croat Initiative (NHI), Kresimir Zubak. Zubak says the current social and economic situation marked with strikes of workers will get complicated in the autumn and that the current authority will not be able to resist the pressure once the workers take it to the streets at mass scale. Regarding his, Lagumdžija's and Dodik's motion about early elections in BiH, Zubak believes the early elections will take place because of the social problems and because of lack of common ground between the ruling parties as demonstrated in the Herzegovina-Neretva Canton where a cantonal government has not been formed 8 months after the elections. Zubak continues: "High Representative, Paddy Ashdown, I believe you remember that, said long time ago that problem in BiH was not nationalism or parties that promote such ideological projects. Now, when everything that happens denies him, he cannot publicly say he was wrong. With his statements and behaviour, he contributed to establishment of such an authority and such election results."
Interview with Jakob Finci, Head of Civil Service Agency	In his interview for Vecernji list (p 5, "Revision criteria met by over 90% of civil servants", by Eldina Medunjanin), Jakob Finci, the Head of Civil Service Agency, disapproves of estimations that there is a huge number of civil servants at the State level. On the contrary, Finci says there are less civil servants at than level than there were before the war, however, due to the constitutional arrangement, the number of employees is increased at the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina (FBiH) and particularly at the cantonal levels. Commenting on the results of the UNDP research on the civil service, Finci says BiH public has a negative charge towards almost everything going on around us. As for the activities of the Civil Service Agency, Finci says that revision and checking of civil servants qualifications are underway, adding that the results so far show that over 90% of civil servants on the state level do meet criteria. "The thing which definitely must be done is to influence the improvement of civil servants quality either through education or through setting of different criteria for joining the civil service", he says. As for the attitude of political parties to the Agency, Finci says the establishment of the Agency was a shock to them as we have suddenly found ourselves in a situation where civil servants are selected on the grounds of their quality solely.

Crime

Charges filed against SBS official for aiding Serbian spy	Croat Radio Herceg Bosna, FTV, Dnevni list front page & p 4, "Armed Serbian agent moved and operated freely in BiH", unsigned, Nezavisne Novine, page 3, 'Suspected of having given a free entrance to intelligence officer from Serbia to BiH' – Charges have been filed against BiH State Border Service director, Mile Juric, because he allowed an armed agent of the Serbian secret services to enter, leave and reside in BiH for several days. Juric has, thus, acquired illegal gains for himself and others by abusing his office and has failed to implement prescribed procedures, read the charges filed with the BiH prosecution service by the chief of the international relations unit of the BiH SBS, Svezlud Hoffman.
SFOR actions in Han Pijesak, Knezevo	Croat Radio Herceg Bosna, BHTV, FTV, RTRS, Dnevni list p 5, "SF0R found huge quantities of weapons near Han-Pijesak", unsigned – SF0R has reported that it had found a large amount of military equipment, mortar-shells and a few types of mortar in the Han Pijesak region (eastern RS). The report adds that the weapons search operation began on Friday, June 13, after intelligence findings pointed to the possibility of arms and ammunition being stored in a prohibited area. SF0R will carry out a detailed investigation to find the group or individuals linked to these illegal activities, the report says. Nezavisne Novine, page 2, 'SF0R action in Knezevo/Skender Vakuf', Vecernji List p 3, "Armed members of SF0R searched Police Station in Knezevo/Skender Vakuf: Search for weapons!?", by Branka Stevandić – During the Saturday search at houses in Knezevo/Skender Vakuf, SF0R Soldiers found some ammunition. According to Marc Hamilton, Deputy Spokesperson of the MND SF0R NorthWest, around 30 SF0R soldiers searched police station, from which they took computers and some documents. SF0R also searched the apartments of ten Knezevo police officers, giving the explanation that "there are criminals" amongst Knezevo policemen.

Gotovina case	Vjesnik (front page, by Dada Zecic, "Granic: General Gotovina is most probably in Austria") – "General Ante Gotovina is certainly not on the territory of the Republic of Croatia but is probably somewhere in Austria", Croatian Deputy Prime Minister in charge of relations with the ICTY, Goran Granic, told the daily over the phone. Granic did not want to be precise whether it is an information coming from the Croatian intelligence, however he stressed that General Gotovina did not contact the Croatia Government. The same daily on front page (by HINA, "Newsweek: The Hague Tribunal could reconsider charges against Gotovina") carries an article by "Newsweek's" Roy Gutman, who writes: "TRIBUNAL OFFICIALS now acknowledge that the accusations against him—that he was responsible for the murder of at least 150 ethnic Serbs and the flight of more than 150,000 in 1995—were based on circumstantial evidence. "Circumstantial evidence is valid unless there is some other reasonable hypothesis," a Hague prosecution official tells NEWSWEEK. But, he says, there could be evidence proving Gotovina "was not responsible" in papers released last Friday. If Gotovina is freed, the tribunal will have to face down the fact that it issued an eight-count indictment based on untruths. The most bizarre charge, the deportation of Serbs from the Krajina region of Croatia, flew in the face of media reports that the Serb exodus was ordered by Serb leaders. (also in Vecernji List, page 10, "Newsweek: Charges against Gotovina being reconsidered", "G. Granic. There are indications Gotovina is in Austria", Slobodna Dalmacija, front and page 2, "The Hague Tribunal could reconsider charges against Gotovina", "Gotovina most probably in Austria", Dnevni List, page 17, "There are assumptions that General Gotovina is in Austria" and "The Hague Tribunal could reconsider charges against Gotovina", Jutarnji List, front page "New evidence could set Gotovina free" and page 5 "Granic: Ante Gotovina most probably in Austria")
