Judge Wolfgang Schomburg said that inmates were tortured, while hundreds of them were killed in the period from May to August 1992. In addition, Stakic was held responsible for RS Army attacks on mostly Bosniak settlements in Prijedor area. Schomburg said that over 1500 persons were killed in those actions, while over 20.000 were forced to exodus. Court concluded that Stakic played important role in ethnic cleansing of the region. Stakic was not found guilty for the genocide. Defence has right to appeal with ICTY Appeal Council. Life sentence is the maximum punishment that can be verdict by ICTY.

Dodik starts testifying in trial of Brdjanin

Croat Radio Herceg Bosna, BHTV, FTV, RTRS, Blic pg. 6 'Forming of camps could have been prevented'; Vecernje Novosti pg. 17. 'Strong local individuals', Glas Srpske, pg. 2, 'Milorad Dodik testified'; Nezavisne Novine, pg. 3, 'Authority was in the hands of individuals', Dnevni Avaz pg. 4 – Former RS Prime Minister Milorad Dodik appeared before the ICTY on Thursday, as the witness in the trial of Radoslav Brdjanin, former president of crisis HQ of so-called Autonomous Region Krajina. Dodik said that community of Krajina municipality was established in fall 1991, as the reaction to the happenings in Croatia. Commenting on Brdjanin's role in crisis HQ in 1992, Dodik said: 'I acknowledge that as the president he had a right to lead that HQ and that he presented it in the public. I can say my impression... Mr. Brdjanin did appear in the public, but the real power in regard to decision making in this body was with some other people.' Asked whether HQ authorities could prevent forming concentration camps, Dodik answered: 'Formally, institutions of the region had authority over lower local communities and bodies. From that point of view, it is logical that they could have made impact on the decisions by local communities. But, what I want to say is the fact that in many municipalities there were strong local people who in certain moments and activities had absolute independence.' Dodik will take witness stand in the trial again on Friday.

Addressing at the gathering, Terzic said that BiH needed additional EU assistance, especially in regard to reconstruction of the infrastructure. Discussions also included strengthening of cooperation and bilateral relations. In telephone interview with BHTV 1, Terzic stressed the need for: 'Economic connection which would lead towards creation of single market, using signed agreements on free trade of almost all countries from this region. Bosniak representatives in the RS Council of Peoples ask for changes in RS' laws, insignia	BHTV, FTV, RTRS, Blic pg. 7 'Disputable coat of arms, anthem and seal'; Vecernje Novosti pg. 8 'They are offended by symbols', Glas Srpske, pg. 3, 'Law needs to be changed'; Nezavisne Novine, pg. 4, 'Initiative for replacement of Republika Srpska insignia forwarded to Parliament and House of People's', Dnevni Avaz pg. 8 – The Bosniak parliamentary floor group in the RS Council of Peoples on Thursday officially asked the executive and legislative authorities in the RS for a change in the law on the flag, coat of arms and anthem, the law on the seal and the law on the territorial organization and local self-rule of the RS. The chairman of the parliamentary floor group, Ramiz Salkic, said that the initiative for the changes in the laws "which are offensive to the national interest of Bosniaks" would be sent to the RS National Assembly and the RS Government, and to the Bosniak MPs from the SDP (BiH Social Democratic Party), the SDA and the Party for BiH. "The national interests of Bosniaks are violated because the RS' seal and coat of arms include four ocila (four C-shaped firesteels, also used on the flag of the Serbian Orthodox Church)," Salkic said at a news conference. According to him, the law on territorial organization should be changed following numerous requests by Bosniak returnees who are demanding a return of pre-war street names and place names in the RS. Salkic said that the demands for the harmonization of the laws with the decision on the constitutive status of three nations would not stop at this, adding that there is no reference to Bosniaks "in the name of the RS" either, which is why they will ask for its change as well. All the laws passed in the RS between 1992 and 1995 will be closely examined, too, he added. "I believe that the initiative will be endorsed sooner or later, and it is better for the RS if it happens sooner," Salkic said. If the attempt to change the three laws at the National Assembly fails, Salkic said that the Constitutional Court of BiH would be asked to rule on the matter. Dnevni Avaz pg. 3 'Symbols of the crime' Commentary of the Day by Almina Pilav – "Rejection of an initiative for change of the RS symbols would be a definitive confirmation that there is no equality in that entity," wrote Pilav.

WB might remove Mostar from the Solid Waste Management project	Croat Radio Herceg Bosna, FTV, Oslobođenje pg. 3 'Mostar without assistance', Dnevni list p 15, "Mayor Jahić's proposal economically and financially unsustainable", not signed, Vecernji list front page "World Bank penalises Mostar" and p 2 "World Bank sanctions behaviour of Mostar authorities", by E.Me – World Bank considers possibility of removal of Mostar from the Solid Waste Management project. Mostar administration failed to establish a single public utility company, which would run the Ubarak waste depot on behalf of all the Mostar citizens. WB could not accept Mayor Hamdija Jahić's project proposal since it was economically and financially unsustainable.
Jadranko Lovric, HDZ representative in Mostar City Council, on Public Utility Company	Jadranko Lovric, the representative of the HDZ caucus in Mostar City Council, explains in Dnevni list (front & p 15, "Croat-majority Municipalities pay 1 million KM to "Komos" a year", by V. Leto & V. Soldo) that he was simply forced to invoke the vital Croat national interest at the last Council's session because of irregularities in establishment of the joint public utility company in Mostar. "Whereas Croat-majority Municipalities transferred onto the City both the operations and rights, Bosniak-majority ones transferred only the operations and 'Komos" company has been favoured. Milan Jovicic, Mostar City Council Vice-president, prepared the Agenda for the session without the consent of any of the Croat councilors", Lovric says. He also refers to the letter the Head of OHR (South), Ambassador Jean-Pierre Bercot, has sent to the councilors in which he expresses concern over the decision that was made. Another issue raised at the City Council session was how "Komos" Public Company was privatised. Lovric adds that "Komos" started operating positively only after it had started collecting garbage from the western part of the town at high cost, so the company has money it does not have to pay off while, when it comes to taking loan, it would have to pay it back. He concludes by expressing hope that the councilors would again sit with the WB and European diplomacy and get a chance to resolve the burning issue of the city.

Mostar Statute

FTV, Dnevni Avaz pg. 2 'It was proposed that the city is established as a single unit of local self-rule' – Discussion on a new Statute for Mostar has started at 6 pm on Thursday. Chances for any progress in reaching agreement are very slim since there are no Bosniaks at the meeting. HDZ and independent members of the Working Group proposed one municipality with 3 election counties, while SDA originally insisted on 6 municipalities, but later on proposed 3 municipalities. However, that proposal was not in compliance with 8 principles set out by the High Representatives set, said Josip Merdzo. Member of the Working Group Krpo proposed all side should have equal number of representatives and city to be organized as Amsterdam. High Representative Ashdown is due to visit Mostar next week, but nobody wants to comment OHR's reaction on current situation. Chairman of BiH Presidency Čović and OHR held consultations on this issue.

CRO press on Mostar restructuring	Vecernji list editorial (p 2, "Games about Mostar and BiH's road to Europe", by Ilko Barbaric), referring to the High Representative's statement that possible failure of Mostar Commission would cause sadness and not anger, while the Head of OHR (South), Jean-Pierre Bercot, has stated he is angry and disappointment over the lack of positive improvement in the unification of Mostar, reads that such undiplomatic expressions of emotions by the leading IC people show that the IC does not hide it is losing temper and that the IC has no real formula to solve problems in the creation of which it was also involved. The commentary says masters of obstructions, CD Coalition, takes advantages of OHR's indifference towards Mostar adding the HR is right when he says the failure of the Commission, made of Mostarians, would not only be a failure of Mostarians but of BiH on its way to Europe."He would be even more right if he would say it would mean the end of his mandate and total collapse of policy led in colonialist-Dayton manner", the editorial concludes. In a separate article, VL (p 2, "Ashdown has a recipe for "solution" to Mostar, by Z.K.) claims the High Representative will pass decision on the new Statute of Mostar, which would lay foundations for abolishment of parallelisms. The author says the solution for Mostar which determines election process and authority practicing is identical to the one on higher levels in the Canton of in Federation of BiH (FBiH) and reflects the meaning of constitutional changes on constituency. Slobodna Dalmacija (p 17, "Mostar without compromise", by Zoran Zekic) comments that, judging by the developments in the Commission's work, it is obvious one could not move from the standstill without the IC and the OHR and wonders if the Commission members will be paid 5 000 KM each for their "work". Dnevni list (p 14, "Djulic: The Commission served as a cover for imposing solution", by S. Bjelica) reports that, at yesterday's press conference, SDP Mostar member Sead Djulic expressed bitterness over the Commission's work adding it had the mandate to draft the Statute of Mostar and not the re-organisation of the city. "Without political agreement, one cannot do a technical job requiring expert opinion", Djulic said.

VL: Interview with High Representative Paddy Ashdown on Mostar	Vecernji List (front page, "OHR should reduce influence in BiH" and page 7, "On half way from negotiations for Aluminij workers", by Dejan Jazvic) carries an interview with High Representative Paddy Ashdown. The HR states the example of Mostar and referring to the Commission that is to draft a new Statute of Mostar he says that for the first time we had the Commission made of domestic representatives and Europe believed that this was the true opportunity for BiH to make something on its way towards Europe. The HR added that having in mind all these facts the results of the Mostar Commission's work are disappointing and damaging for BiH approaching Europe and citizens of Mostar will suffer the most. The HR is quoted as saying: "Political parties exactly were the ones that were stopping individuals, that is, the Mostar Commission's members, to do something in order to achieve a success. Everybody knows which are these parties and there is no need that I name them." Asked as to what he will do regarding this issue, the HR says that during the summer break he will think about this issue and then he will take necessary actions to secure that Mostar citizens get the authority they deserve. Asked as to when Mostar citizens can expect to start living in a normal city with the unified administration the HR says that the Mostar issue has to be resolved. Ashdown added that having in mind the fact that local elections in BiH have been announced for October next year and in order to make proper preparations for the elections appropriate institutions have to exist in Mostar by the end of this year.

NN editorial on Mostar and OHR	Nezavisne Novine editorial by Josip Blazevic, pg. 7, 'OHR and Mostar people' – In the article, the author is critical of the failure of Mostar authorities to prepare the Statute on the City of Mostar. He explains that: "The stultified Mostar public cannot acknowledge that owing to the failure of reaching consensus, regarding the future organisation of the City, the vital existential interests of the people will be jeopardised. The consequences of the false formulation of matter have been extremely bad." He concludes the article by saying that: "Judging from current status of matters, it may be expected that HiRep will pass a decision on Mostar at the end. It turns out that OHR takes care of quality of human life and health of Bosnians and Herzegovinians, instead of just supervising the full implementation of the Dayton Peace Agreement."
Defence Reform Commission with Kalinic and Sakan	Glas Srpske, pg. 2, 'Constitution writes solutions' – The RS Parliament Speaker, Dragan Kalinic, and President of Republika Srpska Parliament Commission for review of defence and internal affairs bodies, Velimir Sakan, on Thursday in Sarajevo met with Jamec Locher, Chairperson of Defence Reform Commission. The participants of the meeting agreed that the defence reform is of essential importance for BiH and Republika Srpska and the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Republika Srpska officials pointed at the need to see the solutions set within the Constitutions of BiH and Republika Srpska.

R. Zelenika on appointment of civil servants	Dnevni List (front page, "Ashdown's plans on capable servants collapse as house of cards" and page 9, "Zelenika: Election of civil servants according to eligibility continues") carries that representative of HDZ-HNZ-CCD Coalition in the Herzegovina-Neretva Cantonal Assembly Romeo Zelenika who says that he is embittered over the way in which civil servants are being elected. In his opinion they are not being elected according to their capability but their eligibility. Zelenika stated: "Paddy Ashdown's law on civil servants' appointments just like his claims that young people will get their chance in this country proved to be unrealizable through appointments of civil servants." As an example he states election of a Secretary in the BiH Ministry of Traffic and Communications for which Zelenika also applied. He says that the whole procedure was farce since it was decided at the very beginning that Nikola Sego will be appointed to this position.
Ljiljan interview with SDA's Seada Palavric	Ljiljan pgs. 18-22 'Borislav Paravac threatens like once did Radovan Karadzic' – Interview with the SDA Vice-president Seada Palavric. "The RS representatives are still having in mind the state structure such was created by Radovan Karadzic. They believe it should be preserved as a separate state. And the representatives of the international community have no strength to tell them that RS is not a state nor it will ever be. That is where these obstructions to reforms are coming from," emphasized Palavric.
Ljiljan: Mikerevic to go, Dodik to come	Ljiljan pgs. 22-23 'Mikerevic to go, Dodik to come' By Mustafa Borovic – "In order to stay in power in difficult circumstance, SDS has no choice and it is forced to reconstruct the government and implement more intensive economic reforms at least to formally satisfy its voters if not achieve more efficient results. General dissatisfaction by the people in RS and stronger and stronger pressures coming from the international community are bringing SDS politicians before a wall and they have to find way out from the current difficulties," wrote Borovic.

Ljiljan: Neither OHR has recipe for (overcoming) BiH troubles	Ljiljan pg. 30 'Neither OHR has recipe for (overcoming) BiH troubles' By Mustafa Borovic – According to Borovic, the latest Transparency International study recently presented to the public shows a pretty bad picture about the situation in BiH claiming that not much has been improved in the post-election period and that some segments have been even worsening. "The international officials have no recipe for how to overcome troubles in BiH and any kind of local authorities are suitable for them in order to formally present themselves responsible before the domestic and international public," read the article.
BH Dani on Ashdown/International Community	BH Dani pg. 6 Bosnian Barometer – The magazine gave three black dots (disastrous move) to High Representative Paddy Ashdown because he was acting and behaving as the head of BiH during his recent visit to Croatia. BH Dani pgs. 18-19 'Paddy and return of the lost ones' – Irham Ceco in the article presents the recently published ICG report on BiH describing it as a detailed and largely correct diagnosis of the situation in the country. "We tried to present some important aspects of Ashdown's pact with the nationalists, but we did not enter into prediction of how successful will be its final accomplishments," said Senad Slatina, the ICG analysts in an interview which is a part of the article.

Economic affairs

Ploce Port/ 5c corridor	BHTV 1 – Solution to the problem called Ploce port is in sight. Obstruction to ratification of the agreement on Ploce by Croatian Parliament was the issue of the international member of port's management board. BH Council of Ministers agreed to exclude this article of the agreement, and Croatian Parliament is expected to ratify it in near future. However, media and some officials speculate that the ratification of this agreement could be used as an exchange good in 5C corridor case. Croatian Ambassador to BiH Josip Vrbosic said that these two issues are not related, adding they should be kept away from these kinds of speculations. 'Let me state that simply there should be no connection made between those two things.' – said Vrbosic. BH Civil Affairs Minister Safet Halilovic said that 'indirectly, in political sense, they might be related, but I don't know whether someone raised this issue in the discussions.' BiH ratified the agreement in 1998 on free transit through Ploce. On the other hand, Croatia believes that the article on international arbitrary breaches territorial independence of the state. BiH made the first step again, signing changed protocol on the Ploce port agreement. 'In my view, it is correct that this new protocol between Croatian government and BiH would be of use for Mr. Racan's personal needs prior to elections.' – said Halilovic. Croatia Prime Minister Ivica Racan, during his recent visit to BiH, promised Croatian Parliament would ratify the agreement on its next session. Vrbosic said that Parliament should start in September. BH Presidency is expected to adopt the changes of Ploce agreement soon.

Nezavisne Novine, pg. 5, 'Dokic: We did not make any promise to "Bosmal" – Branko Dokic, BiH Minister of Traffic and Communication, yesterday stated that a positive response of the BiH Council of Ministers on the initiative of BIH-Malaysian firm "Bosmal" does not necessarily mean that it was an end to negotiations on construction of the highway 5C. he explained that: "We did not make a promise to anybody. The job will be awarded to firm, which offers best conditions."

Aluminij

Croat Radio Herceg Bosna, BHTV 1, FTV, Oslobođenje pg. 6 'Price of the electricity to be determined by the Government', Dnevni Avaz pg. 2 'German Ambassador warns that the German investors' interests are being jeopardised' – FBiH government on Thursday adopted the Law on Forests, but did not take stand on the issue of dispute between Elektroprivreda BiH and German company Daimler-Chrysler. German Ambassador to BiH said that negotiations between Elektroprivreda and German company could raise negative reactions of the German investors in BiH, but also impact economic cooperation between two countries. BHTV 1 found out that he also asked Chairman of the BiH Presidency Dragan Covic to positively influence those negotiations. At the same time, the independent union in the Aluminij company warned that consequences of price rise in electricity could leave 900 workers without a job. However, Emir Aganovic, director of production department in Elektroprivreda BiH, said that this company 'was at loss, so are the mines, only Aluminij is positive. Average salaries of miners, workers in Elektroprivreda and in Aluminij could not be even compared.' Due to difference of the prices offered by German Company and those requested by Elektroprivreda BiH, this company registers 10 million KM of loss annually.

Dnevni list (p 5, "Budgets with no funds, workers on the streets", by M.R.), Vecernji list (p 2, "Not a word from the FBiH Government about "Aluminij", by Eldina Medunjanin) and Slobodna Dalmacija (p 20, "German interests in BiH threatened", by Fena and "Workers to get out in the streets", by Zoran Zekic) also carried the press release of the Independent Union of "Aluminij" and reported on the yesterday's meeting between Dragan Covic, the BiH Presidency Chairman, with the German Ambassador to BiH, Arnea Freiherr von Kittlitz und Ottendorf.

Ashdown on Aluminij	Asked about the possible increase of the electricity price for Aluminij company the High Representative, Paddy Ashdown, told Vecernji List that the delicate negotiations on this issue were on the half way and the OHR was involved in them. The HR added that this issue has to be resolved and that his statements in such delicate moment would not be of any use. The HR also stated: "If we want to Europe it will not happen through the OHR. Authority bodies have to do more."
