Education reforms

IC representatives warn against politicisation of education reforms	FTV, RHB, Oslobođenje cover splash 'To Europe or into the black hole', pgs 4&5 'Politicisation of the education reforms will destroy BiH', Dnevni Avaz pg 4 'Politicisation of the reforms damages changes for BiH's admission to EU', Nezavisne Novine pg 2 'Issue of ethnic schools may jeopardise the future of BiH' – The High Representative, Paddy Ashdown, the Head of the OSCE Mission to BiH Robert Beecroft and the Council of Europe's Special Representative in BiH, Sonja Moser-Starrach on Sunday restated that turning administrative and technical reforms in Primary and Secondary schools in the FBiH into political and ethnic issues, will damage BiH's prospects for a European future. In a press statement, officials underlined they were concerned by the reports of a Declaration signed by five Croat Cantonal Education Ministers, Stipo Ivankovic (Canton 2), Nikola Lovrinovic (Canton 6), Jago Musa (Canton 7), Jozo Maric (Canton 8) and Marin Ivic (Canton 10), which suggests that these Ministers will not support reforms in Primary and Secondary School education. "The meaning of this Declaration remains unclear, but were this to result in BiH failing to meet it's legal, post accession, commitments to the Council of Europe – the fulfilment of which are also a requirement for the start of negotiations with the EC on a Stabilisation and Association Agreement – then this would be a most serious and grave development" said the Paddy Ashdown adding that this "matter could destroy BiH's hopes for a European future. The HDZ in Croatia are leading that Country towards Europe. The question we must ask is: are obstructionists in HDZ BiH blocking BiH's chance at that same goal?" Finally, IC representatives also reminded that while all Cantonal Ministers of Education have endorsed the 'Education Reform Strategy', there has been little or no progress in implementing these reforms. BHTV 1 – The High Representative had already met with the Ministers reported to have signed the Declaration on 24 February when he said that that Cantonal Education Ministries and their Ministers must fully support education reform within their own Cantons.

Halilovic on problems with Higher Education Law	RHB, Oslobođenje pg 5 'To Europe or in the black hole' – Asked to comment the declaration signed by five Croat education ministers not accepting education reforms, BiH Civil Affairs Minister, Safet Halilovic stated for daily: "As much as I could see, there are two things being mixed there. The first one is the Law on primary and secondary education, which has been adopted and foresees implementation in the practice, which – I have to say – is not going that well. It respects all constitutional and legal norms, but it doesn't endorse discrimination in the schools. The second thing is the Law on Higher Education, whose text has been draft... But lately, some HDZ ministers' opinions started to differ." Halilovic further says that demand by HDZ leader, Barisa Colak, to have higher education on both state and cantonal levels is a "nonsense", and underlines the need of integration into European trends. "The newest paper demands ethnic organisation of the universities, under excuse that the languages are not equal, and the new law foresees the possibility of introducing one's own language in higher education institutions, but only in administrative sense. But, if we have three ethnic universities, there are no European Standards,... If someone chooses black hole instead of European way, it is up to them," Halilovic concludes.
DA interview with Beecroft on education reforms	Dnevni Avaz cover splash 'Politics must go out of the education', pg 5 'You will either implement education reforms, or will lose 42 million US dollars of a loan' by Sead Numanovic – In an interview to DA, Head of OSCE Mission to BiH, Ambassador Robert Beecroft, stated that the "common interests of the both international community and a majority of domestic authorities is not to allow the politicisation of the education. But, some wish politics to dominate education." Stating that the current education model needed to be reformed, Beecroft stressed that he did not see which constitution reason was used to have any university based on the language of teaching. Finally, Ambassador Beecroft repeated that the reforms in higher education would have to be carried out, adding that otherwise BiH would lose 42 million US dollars worth loan from the World Bank.

SNSD: 'Rally is a turning point in political life of RS'	FTV, BHTV 1, Nezavisne Novine pg 4 'Rally is a turning point in political life of RS' – Protests organized by RS opposition parties, which will call on extraordinary elections in BiH, will begin on Tuesday in Banja Luka at noon. SNSD Secretary General, Igor Radojcic announced completion of preparations for the protest and announced that SNDS leader, Milorad Dodik will hold meeting with the RS Interior Minister Zoran Djeric. RTRS – Protest will start with a minute of silence for Serb victims in recent Kosovo escalation of the violence. "This will be a global message against terrorism, violence, ethnical cleansing, killings, destruction of property, cleansing of history of one people," said Igor Radojcic. He also said that there will be a special traffic regime in Banja Luka during the protests. Opposition claims that the current situation is unbearable and therefore the motto of the protests will be "This can't go on". Milorad Dodik comments: "This was a message of the round table we organized several weeks ago. The conditions have been created for people to simply go out in a civilized, peaceful manner here in Banja Luka at five after noon, and will... try to affect the conscience of those holding power". RS Ministry of Interior will provide security during the event. Zoran Glusac, Spokesperson of RS MoI, said that they would later decide on manpower needed for the afternoon. According to the study presented by the Institute for Middle East and Balkan Studies, more than 80% of RS citizens support these protests.
DA: Dodik on protest	Dnevni Avaz cover, pg 2 'We are not inviting anybody with a stone in their pockets' – In a statement for DA, SNSD leader Milorad Dodik underlines that protests in Banja Luka to take place on Tuesday would be a peaceful event, with an aim to point to the difficult situation in RS. Dodik adds that the protests will be attended also by the people from FBiH – Sarajevo, Mostar, Zavidovici and other cities: "That will be an opportunity to condemn any form of violence and vandalism, which we saw took place in Kosovo. We will say clearly that the one cannot respond to the violence with the violence. We will call upon people for peace and tolerance, and RS and BiH authorities to hold early elections in order to see whether people once more could say that they would take this or some other way." Dodik stressed that he believed there would be no incidents in Banja Luka during the protests.

Reactions to opposition protests in Banja Luka on Tuesday	RTRS, Nezavisne Novine pg 5 'Authority cannot be ousted through protests'; Glas Srpske, pg. 2, 'To get on power through shortcut', Blic front, pg 12 'Problems are not to be resolved out on streets', Vecernje Novosti pg 21 "Hot" protest' – The Socialist Party also supported protests saying that ruling parties must be aware that their politics were unbearable. Leader of the party, Petar Djokic blamed the nationalistic parties for being responsible for war in BiH: "Those parties present a bad image for the state, because of that, this area is not interesting for no one with the money and wants to invest it, as it is unsafe and this will continue as long as these parties are in the power." Meanwhile, ruling parties in RS consider that protests can't bring any good to RS citizens or its institutions. SDS claims that Opposition has no moral or political credibility and wonders what are the issues that SNSD claims Government doesn't have an understanding for. "Why aren't they prepared to wait the results of local elections, so that then we could really see what is a political rating of all political parties in RS", stated Dusan Stojicic, SDS Spokesperson. PDP claims that at this moment RS is more stabile part of BiH. "The question is in whose interest, and upon whose order the opposition is planning to carry out protests with a goal of destabilization of these institutions," said Velimir Sakan, member of PDP Main Board. According to Pandelija Damjanovic, Chair of the Serb Radical Party's Executive Board, SNSD intention was to cover up for their internal problems and the most of their illegal activities. "They [SNSD] have to be extremely careful so that they wouldn't alienate Banja Luka from the rest part of RS," comments Dragan Kalinic, RS National Assembly Speaker. Nezavisne Novine pg 4 'Time has come authority of RS and BiH re-examine their legitimacy at elections' – Marko Pavic, President of DNS [Democratic People's Alliance] said that the opposition and citizens of Republika Srpska will address a message to authority from Krajina Square in Banjaluka that it is high time they left the power and re-examined their legitimacy at elections. BHTV 1 – "I respect everyone's right to participate in the protests, but you cannot expect to dissolve authorities during the protests", Dusan Stojicic, SDS spokesman, comments. Opposition, in the meanwhile announced internal control, which will prevent conflicts during the protests. They claim that, at this moment, opposition enjoys support by the international community. SDP leader, Zlatko Lagumdzija, said that his party hoped that the protests in Banja Luka would offer a getaway out form the current situation. "The biggest SDP opponent is the current situation, situation without economic perspective or justice and employment, and that is what should be changed," said Lagumdzija. While SDP support protests, Lagumdzija didn't announce similar activities would be carried out in FBiH. Nezavisne Novine pg 5 'Authority should not be allowed to make use of protests' – Zlatko Lagumdzija, SDP President, expressed hope that those who organised 23 March protests would not allow that the authority parties take advantage of this protest. Dnevni Avaz pg 2 'Violence in Banja Luka could have difficult consequences' – Memebr of the SBIH Presidency, Beriz Belkic said that he did not have negative stand on the protests, but stressed that he expected from organizers to be able to hold control over the gathering. Leader of NHI, Kresimir Zubak, also expressed hope that he protests would go in the peaceful manner, adding that his party also saw exit from the crisis in early elections. RS Vice President Adil Osmanovic comments that opposition uses protests to take over the authorities, and adds that "trial to solve problems in the street could slow down reforms necessary to this state." Elmir Jahic, SDA Vice President, believes that there is no reason for protests, while SDU leader Miro Lazovic says that opposition covered up for the real reason of protest, believing that this was a respond to the public cry for early elections, despite knowing that they would not happen. Nezavisne Novine cover, pg 5 'I will go at 23 March protests' – Ivan Tomljenovic, RS Vice President, expressed support to 23 March protests in Banjaluka and its main demand for holding early elections owing to bad economic and social situation in BiH. He said that he would join RS citizens in expressing dissatisfaction with the inefficient work of the current authority of BiH. He also says that if petition contains enough signatures, the RS President, Dragan Cavic, cannot ignore this and should disband Parliament.
NN editorial on Banja Luka protests	Nezavisne Novine pg 7 'Demonstration' editorial by Mirjana Kusmuk – Referring to the protest, author writes that the ruling political parties have demonstrated their fear from this protest by having widely opposed to it verbally. Namely she says that authority has shown its weakness on running the Republika Srpska by having so strongly and aggressively opposed to the announced protests. She also adds that ruling parties would survive in political context. But the myth on political omnipotence will disappear.

HDZ leader, Barisa Colak, stated for Federation Radio that HDZ Ministers would return to the sessions once the party reaches an agreement on future cooperation with SDA. He added that this could happen soon, stressing that if this was not possible, then HDZ doesn't exclude possibility of becoming opposition party or of organizing early elections. Colak underlined that the practice of outvoting and making decision in an absence of the Croat Ministers must be stopped: "You cannot discuss the draft budget proposal for 2004 at the session of FBiH Government without the presence of Finance Ministers Dragan Vrankic, who is also Vice President of that Government." In an interview, Colak also commented to the security situation in BiH, saying that it was quite worsened due to the general situation in the society. As for the BiH Interpol, following the arrest of its Deputy Director Asim Fazlic, accused of misuse of power, Colak said that this affair brought up a lot of damage to BiH's reputation. VL on turmoil in NHI	Vecernji List front pg 'Kresimir Zubak bans NHI founders from party', pg 4 'Zubak bans most of "founders" from party' by Dejan Jazvic – Commenting that six months prior to the general elections in BiH and a week prior to the NHI Congress [due on Saturday] a huge crisis is shaking the party, VL reports that the clashes in NHI have reached a climax. Namely, information leaked that there are clashes between 2 NHI factions: the one lead by the current President Kresimir Zubak and the other one which gathers around Mijo Anic, Ivo Lozancic and Nikola Grabovac. The cause of this situation is the passive position the NHI is in ever since the 2002 elections. Zubak is reported to be objected by the "rebels" for having let the party nearly disappear from the political scene and for getting too close to Lagumdžija's SDP. On the other hand, Zubak and the people of like mind reproach Lozancic for acting in the Parliament without consulting the party leadership and are revolted over more and more obvious fact that Mijo Anic distances himself from the leadership. This leads to a conclusion that the "undisciplined" could be banned from the party.
CoM to vote on draft Restitution Law	Dnevni Avaz pg 9 'CoM will today take official stand' – The Council of Ministers are expected to vote on the draft Restitution law, prepared by the BiH House of Representative's Speaker Nikola Spiric. Spokesperson for the Chairman of the CoM, Bojan Zec-Filipovic stated that CoM recently asked for the withdrawal of Spiric's draft, however that official stand would be know at the beginning of this week. "It is still early to say what stand they would take, but it is probable that they would stick to their earlier opinion," said Filipovic. 'Dom' Association said they expected OHR to solve this issue, while opposing to the draft Law. OHR Spokesperson, Vedran Persic, stated that OHR suggests authorities to solve the restitution issue based on some healthy economic grounds, and that it encourages them to seek advices from organization with the experience in this field.

But, the story of protestors, that they want to address the delegates, and that if that was not enabled to them, they would block the traffic and border crossings – while not wanting to send a message to executive authorities – is not logical."

DA on protests
related to economy

Dnevni Avaz pg 3 'Encouragements to the agriculture' op-ed by Enes Plecic – Referring to the protests to be held by Farmers Associations and their threats of blocking border crossings and roads if 200 million KM is not secured to this sector, author writes that there these demands are to be added to those posed by other associations and if all were to be satisfied BiH authorities would need at least a billion KM per annum. Noting that the authorities were obviously in the split between wishes and possibilities, author concludes: "It is finally a time for Parliaments to voice their opinions and establish single policy aimed at stimulating [economy] that will not disturb both internal and external economic relations, but secure everybody in the country equal conditions for doing profitable business."

VL on FBiH Tax Administration

Kresic – VL carries that due to application of Book of Rules on internal organization of the Federation of BiH Tax Administration the number of employees in tax offices in the areas with the Croat majority will be reduced by 140 persons. VL reminds that FBiH Minister of Finances Dragan Vrankic signed the aforementioned Book of Rules in January after CAFAO and the OHR were exerting pressure against him for months. Also, the FBiH Ministry of Finances explained that it will be offered to most of these employees to work in the data processing center that will be seated in Mostar. VL also says that criteria for determining the number of employees in the tax offices was the number of registered tax payers, however, according to the article, these information were fabricated in order to keep a bigger number of the employees in some Municipalities. VL also says that although some tax offices were demanding persistently to check these information they did not receive any reply.

Goran Milojevic, Co-Chairperson of the BiH HoP, says that authorities of the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina behave the same way they behaved before the Resolution was passed. Hadzic— Journalist calls the last week's operation carried out in Bratunac area to be nothing more but travesty on the arrest of Radovan Karadzic, and says that, according to the sources, the action was a result of the recent visit by US Ambassadors for War Criminals at large, Pierre Prosper to Banja Luka. "Only three nights before the action Karadzic crossed Konjevic Polje. I know that in one moment there was electricity black out at the gas station in Konjevic Polje, so the entire crossroad was in dark... Five jeeps arrived from the direction of Vlasenica... I heard a worker to say briefly to someone over the phone: 'It is OK, they passed,'" cites Avaz a witness of what its says to be Karadzic's move through Konjevic polje.
