TI study shows executive and legislative authorities most corrupted in BiH	RTRS, RHB, Oslobođenje pg 6 'Citizens do not trust to state leadership', mentioned on cover 'Citizens do not trust to state', by S. Sehercehajic, Dnevni Avaz pg 3 'Ian Cliff suggests single BiH strategy to fight corruption' by Fena, Dnevni List front and pg 3, 'Ministers and party leaders are most corrupted', by Vedran Vujovic, Nezavisne Novine, cover 'Political parties are the most corrupted' and pg. 6 'Parties are the most corrupted institutions in BiH' by M. Renner, EuroBlic, cover and pg. RS1 'Corruption of parties, Ministries, firms...' by J. D., Glas Srpske, pg. 3 'Politicians are leading the game' not signed – The Transparency International BiH and the British Department for International Development presented the BiH national integrity system study which analyses capacities and quality of all key institutions to fight corruption, starting from legislative and executive authorities and justice departments, to auditors, ombudsmen both governmental organizations and NGOs, media and the international community. It concludes that the institutional capacities in BiH for fighting corruption are weak, biased, politicised and corrupted. Study remarks that BiH needs an overall and a single strategy for fighting corruption in order to create legal and institutional conditions for efficiently fighting it. This was also stressed by the British Ambassador to BiH Ian Cliff who stressed that the fight against corruption is tied to measures that need to be taken on fighting organised crime in general, as well as networks supporting indicted war criminals. Boris Divjak, chairman of the TI's Board of Directors, says that could reflect badly in the next elections. The study shows that political parties hold the top spot in the level corruption, while the media and NGOs enjoy the most trust of citizens. One encouraging thing from these researches is that BiH citizens are becoming increasingly aware of dangers brought by corruption. Transparency International also claims that many institutions function only because they are under pressure from the international community. BHT 1 – "Presence of corruption, organized crime and networks supporting war criminals reduces social and economic development in BiH. Solving this problem is one of the preconditions for accession to the EU and easier visa regime," stated Ian Cliff. FTV – Report shows that some institutions are more corrupted than the others, noting that the corruption decreases on local level while at the same time it increases at the entity and state level. Boris Divjak notes that the lowest rated are legislative and executive authorities at all levels. "On the other hand, there are some positive examples, and those are, according to the responds from citizens in our surveys, the institution of general auditor and ombudsmen," said Divjak adding: "Most corrupted, as stated by the citizens, are political parties. Now, we have an interesting synergy, a triangle: political parties – ministries or agencies in government service – public companies." The citizens stated their trust to media, non-governmental sector and OHR.

VL interview with HR Ashdown	Vecernji List, pg 5 'Ministry of Security exists only in Colak's person', mentioned on front, by Dejan Jazvic – VL carries an interview with the High Representative for BiH, Paddy Ashdown, in which he, responding to a question as to what he expects from BiH authorities in the period to come, says: "I expect three things: implementation, implementation, implementation". HR Ashdown goes on to say that BiH authorities have for the first time surprised people from the IC who observe the situation in BiH, because many believed it would be impossible to fulfill the famous 16 tasks (Feasibility Study). However, HR Ashdown notes that the tasks have not been fully completed, adding that BiH authorities should feel proud because they have completed most of the job. Furthermore, HR Ashdown lays down OHR's six priorities, the priorities being: the SIPA, war crimes chamber with the BiH Court, Indirect Tax Authority, intelligence-security service, ministries of defence and security. With regards to the latter, HR Ashdown says the fact is that the ministry is embodied in Minister Barisa Colak, noting that premises need to be found to accommodate the ministry. Questioned as to what are the biggest obstacles in the process, HR Ashdown says: "I must admit that I am worried the most with the games that are being played during the pre-election period. Every side provokes the other, because both know they will get more votes in the elections by doing so. I see the game in the RS, in central Bosnia, in southern Herzegovina. It's an old game, the aim of which is to secure more votes in the nationalistic ballot boxes. Maybe I do not like it, but it's a legitimate political tactics". Finally, questioned as to how long he was ready to stay in the current position, HR Ashdown notes that November 2005, the tenth anniversary of the DPA, is the final boundary for him. "My family threatened me with war if I am not at home for Christmas in 2005", said HR Ashdown.

Assistant head of municipality Asim Pitic demanded the assistance from OHR regional office in Mostar stating that it is "obvious that HDZ obstructs the project of merging schools under one roof in Stolac." His letter sent to OHR also concludes that all efforts by the international community regarding the education will stay without results without involvement of the OHR.

The letter very harshly criticizes Ashdown for "malicious comparison of Tito and criminal Karadzic". After giving detailed account of Tito's historic importance and several negative remarks on the international community regarding the war criminals still at large, letter concludes: "We will take this incident, Mr Ashdown, as a result of your lack of historic knowledge and desire to have as effective media appearance as possible, but at the same time we ask you to restrain in a future from such and similar statements in which you compare heroes and great men with the criminals."

Trade Unions
in BIH support
Buk Bijela

RTSR – Project of building Buk Bijela hydropower plant on Drina was supported by the chairmen of the Trade Unions in BiH Edhem Biber, Cedo Volas and Ilija Kalajdzic, and all three said they will inform OHR and BIH in writing tomorrow. “We, in RS, will publicly ask from OHR not to interfere with the construction of Buk Bijela hydropower plant in Foca/Srbinje because it is an economic potential for entire BIH, that area and people in BIH”, says Cedo Volas Chairman of RS Trade Union. “We absolutely support all that will bring employment. If the percentage of unemployment is over 45% in FBIH and 41% in RS, that is worrying. At the moment that is the only way, Vc corridor,... power plants like Buk BIjela and others are at the moment the only chance to employ a large number of people and in such a way to stabilise current difficult and complicated situation. Economic situation in BiH at the moment is very difficult,” says Edhem Biber Chairman of BIH Association of independent trade unions. Unions also stressed a need to create an umbrella organization which would works towards creating equal rights for all workers. “The position of District Union is to bring together Trade Unions working in BIH... through and coordination of these 2 biggest Unions. Our suggestion is that the Chairman of the initiative board is Edhem Biber”, says Ilija Kalajdzic, Chairman of Brcko District Union.

Nezavisne Novine, pg. 4 ‘Trade Union leaders support the construction of “Buk Bijela”’ by V. M. – also reported on this issue.

Oslobodjenje pg 2 ‘Unionists’ op-ed by Senka Kurtovic – Referring to the joint stand of three Trade Unions chairmen regarding the Buk Bijela project, author notes that it is impressive that they finally have remembered the workers as they Biber and Volas mainly spend time travelling to seminars and attending round tables. She also welcomed the idea of establishing roof organization, however cynically noting that idea has appeared a number of times before, concluding “only If Biber and Volas could agree on who would be the chair.”

Dusko Djuric, a professor at the Banja Luka Faculty of Architecture and Construction, says: 'the international community disputes both what should and what should not be disputed. The privatisation of "Elektroprivreda" has nothing to do with "Buk Bijela"'. He emphasises that ecologists' claims on harmful environmental influence of the construction of "Buk Bijela" were arbitrary and, most probably, ordered by someone. Djuric says he sees no reason to abolish the implementation of this project.

of workers from Mostar
City
Administration

Dnevni List, pg 15 'Firing of employees only after December 31?!', mentioned on front, by Zvonimir Jukic – DL announces that the City Council of Mostar should at its session scheduled for today adopt a new book of rules on systematisation of jobs in the Mostar City Administration and decisions how to take care of surplus workers of the CA. DL notes that the city authorities have been prolonging the process because it did not suit them to fire surplus workers just before the elections, but after an OHR intervention, when Senior Deputy High Representative, Werner Wnendt, stated that no delays would be acceptable, it was a clear signal that they have to go ahead with the systematisation plan. DL goes on to say that Mayor and Deputy Mayor of Mostar, Hamdija Jahic and Ljubo Beslic, burdened with requests of the CA's employees, will advise councilors to adopt decisions that will at least for time being regulate the status of surplus workers. Apparently, Jahic and Beslic also propose an establishment of a working group that will make the program of taking care of those workers, which should include representatives of both domestic and international authorities. According to Jahic and Beslic's proposal, the Administration employees who do not get a job once the vacancies have been issued and realized will get the status of surplus workers, but they will not be fired until December 31. "After that, the status of surplus workers will be solved on basis of the adopted Programme of taking care of surplus workers of the City administration", reads Jahic and Beslic's proposal. Inset 'Solution – Federation ministries in Mostar' notes that a possible solution how to take care of surplus workers is to give them jobs in other state institutions, foremost the 5 FBiH ministries that are supposed to be seated in Mostar. In that context, DL notes that even the High Representative for BiH, Paddy Ashdown, has kept silent about the moving of 5 FBiH ministries from Sarajevo to Mostar, despite his statements from the beginning of his mandate that the moving must be done immediately.

SD on housing and tenancy rights issues	Slobodna Dalmacija, front and pg 14 'Tenancy rights can be cancelled', by Zoran Zekic – speaking about the legislation in the area of housing-related issues in BiH, the author claims that the law on housing units, "as blessed by former High Representative for BiH, Wolfgang Petritsch", which allows that apartments are to be returned to holders of pre-war tenancy rights, can be soon contested by international legislation. To substantiate his claim, the author cites that the Strasbourg-based European Human Rights Court recently presented his position in the 'Blecic v Croatia' case, the case related to tenancy right, whose (Blecic's) tenancy right was cancelled after she left the apartment for period longer than 6 months. The Court ruled that there was no violation of the article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights, which does not surprise the author, who notes that the tenancy right is only a right to use an apartment, which can be cancelled if, for example, the person in question does not use the apartment for a longer period of time.

P. – according to DL's source close to RAK (Communications Regulatory Agency), Council of RAK will on Friday (August 27) reject Eronet's appeal to RAK's earlier decision that the 3rd GSM licence is to be awarded to HT Mostar. IC official on IMF stand-by arrangement	Nezavisne Novine, pg. 4 'Agreement with IMF is not an imperative for BiH authority' by M. Cubro – A source from the international community claims that, for the first time since the war, signing of a stand-by arrangement with IMF is not an imperative for BiH authority. 'The policy of IMF is to have a macro-economic stability and the terms that have been offered for the new stand-by arrangement have been developed having in mind this very goal', the source claims. Apart from money, the agreement with IMF represents a certain certificate on the stability of the country. Therefore, BiH authority are not willing to give up from this agreement, although it is not their imperative. State and entity Prime Ministers confirmed on Monday that they do not find the offered terms of the new stand-by arrangement as acceptable.
