HR's First Anniversary

Interview with HR Ashdown	BHTV 19: 00 hrs by Laura Bosnjak – as the introduction to the interview, HR Paddy Ashdown was quoted as saying that BiH joining the EU by 2009 was possible if the reforms were implemented fast. During the interview, the HR stressed that the cost of the BiH government was an economic issue. “Two thirds of the taxes the citizens pay are spent on the politicians and bureaucracy, only one third goes to the citizens. This means that in a poor country such as BiH more money is spent on the government than in the US. We cannot afford to spend so much on politicians and bureaucracy and so little on the citizens who pay taxes,” said Ashdown. He stressed that the issue of who is guilty and who’s not, in relation to certain crimes in BiH, was not a question for the HR, but for the courts. “What we did last year was that we replaced corrupt judges, opened up space for the rule of law climate, opened up the state court and the court that would process criminal cases,” said the HR. Asked why BiH was still waiting for Serbia to send a list of criminals who would be banned from entering BiH, HR replied it was a big problem that was continuously addressed to the Serbian authorities.

HR's address	RTRS at 19:30 hrs – in his written statement to the BiH citizens, following the first anniversary of his mandate in BiH, HR Paddy Ashdown stressed the importance of fight against crime and prostitution. Politics and criminal are directly linked in BiH. Also supporters of war criminals should be eliminated. Ashdown expresses optimism regarding the BiH joining the EU integration. Some important tasks have been accomplished last year. Avaz pg. 4 'No easy way to implement reforms' – last night's TV address by HR during which he stated it was possible for BiH to join the EU if reforms were implemented fast. Also said that in the next period attention has to be drawn to one big problem – the expenses of the BiH authorities.
HR's interview for BBC	Oslobodjenje pg. 1 and 5 – said BiH was becoming the best country for foreign investments. He called on all interested foreign investors to invest in BiH. He warned of a misunderstanding between the local authorities and the IC in regard to how how long the peace building process lasts.

Oslobodjenje commentary	Oslobodjenje pg. 2 'Paddy's first year' by Amra Kebo – the author says that Ashdown was very welcomed when he first arrived to BiH, but a year later he is not as nearly popular. Assessments from the IC circles, claims Kebo, are that he is a good politician who surrounded himself with bad associates. Kebo goes on to list a number of things he has done – he has been making a decision every fourth day. So far, sums up the author, Ashdown is best known for expelling Munja and failing to expel Sarovic from the politics forever. However, she adds, he still has a chance of being celebrated as 'Clinton' – if works on the construction of the Vc corridor commenced, the project which would open employment opportunities and feed the hungry.
CRO press on HR's 1st anniversary	Dnevni List pg. 1 and 10 – a letter HR wrote to the BiH citizens following the first anniversary of his mandate in BiH. Also, the daily carries reactions by BiH citizens, which are generally positive.

Political Affairs

EU on BiH – US Agreement

BHTV at 19:00 hrs by Senad Pandzic – following the signing of the US – BiH Agreement, Chairman of the EU Council, Jorge Papandreu, and European Commission President, Chris Patten, have addressed a very strong warning to the BiH authorities. The EU continues to strongly support the need for the efficient ICC functioning. “As a country that the EU has close and developing relations, we refer you to the conclusions and leading principles of the EU Council when formulating your response to the US bilateral agreement,” says the EU warning. Avaz pg. 2 ‘EU is against the Agreement with US’ – the EU requested from the BiH authorities not to ratify the Agreement with the US. Vecernji List pg. 2 ‘On ratification on June 6?’ – Speaker of BiH Parliament’s House of Representatives, Sefik Dzaferovic, as confirming that the ‘controversial agreement’, as VL labels it, between BiH and US on the exemption of the US citizens from the ICC has not reached the state Parliament yet. Dzaferovic says the agreement has not been sent into the parliamentary procedure adding that if the agreement were to be received during this week, it could be discussed by the Parliament during a session scheduled for June 6. Apparently, the hold-up happened due to the fact that the original text of the agreement in English needed to be translated and subsequently checked by the US. Moreover, VL says the BiH Presidency rules out speculations that the BiH authorities are playing a double game by trying to sign the agreement without ratifying it, like Romania which signed a similar agreement with the US last year but still has not to ratified it.

BHTV at 19:00 hrs by Vanja Ibrahimbegovic – EUPM made a very careful estimate that the Mostar police might have used an excessive force during the riots after the Saturday football game in Mostar – though an investigation is still in the process. BHTV cameraman was advised to file an official complaint in order for the investigation to be carried out. “Police has no right to confiscate filmed material from journalists after riots if they were only doing their job,” said Alun Roberts, adding that the police forces must respect the established code of conduct towards the media. FTV at 19:30 by Zeljko Tica – the EUPM says police has no right to detain a TV cameraman just for doing their job. Police must conduct a full, open and fundamental investigation on events that occurred after the Saturday’s soccer match in Mostar and it is going to be closely monitored by the EUPM. The EU police mission is trying to determine whether football supporters behaved in a provocative way and whether police used an unnecessary force to stop them. The letter was triggered following Miletic's recent statement where he accused political officials to be a part of organized crime. Hadzipasic wants to know first whether Miletic said what papers reported. If so, Hadzipasic wants him to offer strong evidence for the claims, which should be forwarded to the FBiH government, prosecution offices and courts. He adds that everything has to be done in accordance with the law. He requested that Miletic and Halilovic replied to these requests in the next few days. Dnevni List pg. 1 and 3 – DL learnt that intensive activities were being carried out within the newly established Association of Directors of Police Administrations of Regions (SEPKA) in order to draft a strategy and implementation plan to clean the region from the organized crime. In order to make this happen, the HQ and supervision have to exist at the state level.” VL carries a statement by an anonymous FBiH Army source who did not agree with Young’s predictions that the armed forces would run short of money during the summer. Education Affairs

DL on education reform	Dnevni List's Miso Relota signs an editorial entitled 'Will lambs go silent?' where he criticizes the ongoing reforms of the BiH educational system. Saying the reform is aimed to have pupils and teachers using a language of their choice so everyone could understand them, Relota called the reform an experiment, which would cause damages to the Croat people the most. "On basis of the experiment, there could be a possibility that for a student to come to a class with 30 Croat pupils and talk in a different language because the law allows him to do that. If the schools in the Croatian language were to be abolished, it would be fair to expect an enhanced exodus of Croats from BiH. Maybe that's the aim of the OSCE's experiment. Remains to be seen," says Relota.
