The delegates failed to endorse it after the BiH Constitutional Court established in June that the law was destructive to vital interests of Croats. law

RHB, FTV – OHR press statement commenting the BiH HoP session says that the decision to reject the Framework Law on the Higher Education further delays putting in place European Higher Education standards across BiH. The legislation has been returned to the Council of Ministers, and it is “now for the CoM to show the political leadership to put the interests of young people, and indeed all those who want BiH to join Europe, above narrow party political interest and ensure this law is returned to parliament as quickly as possible. The need for urgency is clear: a tranche of World Bank funds linked to this legislation has already been lost, and BiH’s most promising young people should not be forced to wait longer than necessary for [this] legislation.”

However, the delegates from the Croat caucus thought that the equality had not been achieved, and they requested an amendment to be adopted which would establish 3 channels for broadcasting on each of the three peoples’ languages. “We have some objections regarding the law on PBS where there is no guarantee that the rights of all peoples on equal access to information and usage of language will be respected” said Velimir Jukic, Croat representative. “The process is opened and by the 10 September new amendments can be proposed in order to solve this issue. This means that by the end of September acceptable version of the law should be brought, the one that would also satisfy European standards,” said Hasan Cengic, Bosniak representative. FTV – “The main motive of HoP is to consider opinions present in HoP which say that there is no clear mechanism to prevent national interests” said Cengic.

EuroBlic, cover 'SDA threats are rhetorical' pg. RS2 'I do not have any great political ambitions' by Rajna Radosavljevic – EuroBlic carries a full-page interview with RS NA Chairman Dusan Stojicic, in which he commented the reply of RS political parties to Sulejman Tihic's initiative by saying that this country has neither time nor space for any further destabilization of political situation. He claims that a constitutionality of a people is jeopardized in the Federation of BiH, in which Serb people is still discriminated regardless of all Constitutional amendments. He also said that there would be no crisis in RS if SDA Ministers were dismissed. 'No crisis would occur at the level of joint institutions either because SDA has the greatest responsibility there. Therefore, I think their threats have a rhetorical character', Stojicic said. According to Stojicic, the adoption of the Resolution on cooperation with the Hague Tribunal was important because the contents and range of cooperation with the Hague Tribunal was not satisfactory. Asked whether RS authority is the main culprit for the failure of BiH at the Summit in Istanbul, Stojicic said: 'I do not think that only RS should be responsible for failure to enter PfP. One should wonder where were representatives of the international community all these years and what have they been doing because they surely have more potential and possibilities than RS authority'.

Ljiljan pgs 18-22 'I hope BiH will be admitted to PfP by the end of year', mentioned on cover, by Fuad Kovac – In an interview to Ljiljan magazine, the Chairman of the BiH Council of Ministers Adnan Terzic says of the reforms process: "Reforms we have initiated create precondition for Europe to look at BiH differently than two or three years ago... since we accept our obligations as true partners and we meet them before the given deadlines." Terzic notes, however, that this was largely achieved due to the support of the international community who "applied big pressure and made it clear to those against reforms that they will be removed from the politics." CoM Chair also notes that the cooperation in the CoM is satisfactory: "There was no bad word coming from CoM for the past 18 months, which indicates that BiH has a future. Because, if Bosniaks, Serbs and Croats can sit down and agree on reforms, that this is a guaranty that this country has a future." Terzic concludes that upcoming local elections are also a kind of reforms: "For the first time the citizens will have to trust a person, and not to the list that will later elect a mayor. For me that is a progress in democratization of BiH."

Dani interview with Dodik

Dani cover, pgs 12-15 'Extraordinary elections to save the country' by Vildana Selimbegovic – Characterized by magazine as the 'most serious opposition leader in both BiH entities', SNSD leader Milorad Dodik in an interview to Dani says that he strongly opposed to the appointment of Dusan Stojicic from SDS for new RS National Assembly Speaker as "there is a series of unsolved affairs he is related to in Teslic." Asked how he comments the fact that SDS, PDP and SDA together opposed to his remarks, Dodik answers: "For a longer time now, the political theatre is occupied by the political coalition of SDS and SDA, which – I think – is completely unnatural and is not in the function of strengthening either BiH or RS institutions. There is also the hypocrisy which is always expressed in the same way and before the elections: at those times, they are trying to renounce each other, and than immediately after the elections they would call on higher goals with an aim to strengthen the joint coalition. That really says the most of their real goals: promotion of partisan interests." Dodik, who also believes that announcements for removal of SDA ministers from RS Government were agreed between coalition partners, says that the only solution for BiH is to hold early, democratic elections. On HR's decision to remove 59 RS officials, Dodik comments: "I really think that [Paddy] Ashdown should have done this and my only objection is that he should have done it earlier. I actually mind to HR for allowing those people to perform public duties at the first place and than to be removed... I am deeply certain that nobody in this country believes that those... nationalists, leaders in the past war, can be reformists now."

Gasi, speculated to be one of the strongest Sarajevo underground figures, was previously accused by Faco to have participated in the murder of Torlakovic in January 2004, together with Naser Keljendi. On the other hand, Gasi accused Ramiz Delalic Celo to be behind all this claiming he returned to Sarajevo.

Slobodna Bosna pgs 28-31 'All explosions in Sarajevo are the act of 5-6 same bandits: Police still 'gathers evidence' against them!', mentioned on cover, by Suzana Mijatovic – On the same issue, SB also wonders whether Celo has returned to BiH, connecting him to the explosion and adding that it is illogical that Gasi would dare to plant a bomb under Pasic's vehicle, knowing he would be the first suspect.

Ljiljan cover page 'Mafia clash in Sarajevo, pg 25 'Policemen or observers' by Mugdim Hasanovic – Author writes that having in mind the current situation, citizens of Sarajevo feel nostalgic about the time when Ismet Dahic was Interior Minister. "At some time Dahic had full support of the highest institutions. Together it is missing or is seriously belated. Secondly, Sarajevo mafia – well connected with certain political circles in the country – stroke back quickly. Instead of them, the bench of accusees was occupied with 20 members of Sarajevo Cantonal SWAT team... Very quickly they stayed without their jobs, thanks to corrupted local politicians and foreign mentors from IPTF, which – stripping them off all authorities, turned domestic police into mere observers and note takers. In such comparison, only crazy police officer will go into the fight with mafia... it is easier to train the harshness on poor ones," reads the article.

internal debt law in FBiH

RHB, Dnevni Avaz pg 2 'Adopt the Law on FBiH Internal Debt as soon as possible' by Fena, Oslobodjenje pg 4 'Urgently adopt the Internal Debt Law', Nezavisne Novine, pg. 4 'To adopt the Law on Internal Debt as soon as possible' by Onasa, Glas Srpske, pg. 3 'Evidence in writing' by M. Mi.— OHR spokesperson in Banja Luka Ljiljana Radetic stated that OHR urges FBiH parliamentarians to adopt the law on internal debt as soon as possible. She told a press conference in Banja Luka that the draft law on internal debt represents the best possible solution to the problem of internal debt, considering the current fiscal situation in FBiH. "The law is of great importance for resolving this problem which has diverted important investment in BiH and prevented the creation of a significant number of new jobs", Radetic said. She warned that further delay in adopting this law means further delay in making payments to pensioners, workers and savers. She said that most citizens would receive this latest delay with regret and added that unfortunately this also means that BiH has not fulfilled its commitments agreed with the IMF. This could have an effect on future international programs in BiH, Radetic said.

Dani pgs 24-25, 61 'BiH a step away from inflation?!' by Snjezana Mulic-Busatlija – "While International community applies pressure on the FBiH Government to adopt the proposed 'Law on Internal Debt' as soon as possible, claiming that economic collapse of the country can be avoided only in this way, representatives of a large number of parliamentary parties believe that this law will be the one to take the country over the edge," writes magazine who notes that the fact that BiH faces such huge debt is the fault only of the politicians for whom it was easier to "hide the problem under the carpet" for very long time. After outlining the proposal of the Law, article reads the comment by SDP who opposes the law, saying that the Government never really established the amount of the debt claiming it is about 20-25% higher than currently stated. HDZ also opposes the law especially due to the article which foresees currency savings to be paid in securities. Article concludes noting that while holders of the old currency savings are fighting this law, for pensioners and invalids it may mean a salvation. "The truth is that this stat needs this law,... the question is whether it has to be like this."

Ljiljan pgs 40-41 'Business of public companies' by Izudin Kesetovic – The article deals with the issue of internal debt in FBiH and the Law on public companies in FBiH. The article considers that the adoption of the Law on public companies, with clear definition of such corporation, would prevent further illegal transitions of state into private capital, and would also have an impact to the internal debt. The current economic situation, concludes the article, "demands urgency and comprehensiveness together with the support to the solutions worked on by the OHR expert team."
