Ashdown on elections: Though job awaits victors	RHB, Dnevni Avaz cover splash 'Though job awaits victors', Oslobodjenje pg 3 'Though job awaits victors' by Fena, Nezavisne Novine, pg. 2 'Success of elections is confirmation of maturity of BiH authority' by Onasa, Glas Srpske, pg. 5 'Confirmation of maturity' by Srna, EuroBlic, pg. RS3 'Focus on reforms' not signed, Dnevni List, pg 3 'OHR congratulates BiH Election Commission', by NINA, Vecernji List, pg 2 'Elections went well', by em – The High Representative, Paddy Ashdown, commented to the municipal elections in BiH saying that the BiH Election Commission, all the Municipal Election Commissions and those others involved in preparing and conducting the elections should be congratulated. "The fact that these successful elections were organised, funded and conducted in entirely peaceful basis by the BiH authorities is a testament to the maturity of those institutions responsible. What awaits the victors is a tough job. For the first time all municipal mayors have been directly elected across BiH. This direct mandate carry's with it a direct responsibility. Municipalities have one characteristic that distinguishes them from other layers of government: they are closer to the people. Therefore, it is here that the politicians serving citizens rather than politicians serving politicians must start in BiH," Ashdown said.
Sehic comments elections	BHT 1 – The Chair of the BiH Election Commission Vehid Sehic, commented for BHT 1 the announcements by leading political parties' of winning the elections. "Maybe there is a positive atmosphere where they feel as winners, and that is good. He added that final counting of votes will be conducted by 12 October. Than Election Commission will first deal with potential objections and appeals of the political parties, and subsequently publish the final results. Around 60 objections have already been filed, mostly referring to the violation of media blackout.

International observers on elections	RHB, RTRS, Oslobođenje pg 5 'IC still rules in BiH' by M.K.S., Dnevni List, pg 2 'Ethnicity is still basis for election campaigns', by Erna Mackic, Nezavisne Novine, pg. 6 'Local elections in accordance with international standards' by N. K. – The administration of the October 2 Municipal Elections in BiH was in accordance with international standards, taking into consideration the unique post-war political structure, was announced on Sunday by the International Election Monitoring Mission. The Head of the Mission, Peter Eicher, stated at the press conference these elections are significant particularly because they were fully funded from BiH sources, officials were elected directly for the first time, the first elections under an election regime that unites the City of Mostar and the first elections for the Brcko District Assembly. Still, he added, these are the transition elections, in spite of the progress, the ultimate power still lies with the international community. Eicher regarded the pre-election campaign as "calm and peaceful", with very few reports on intimidation. The Election Commission was commended for maintaining the great trust of the political parties. Eicher also said that several omissions have been observed in the elections, among them the constant presence of ethnic divisions in the election campaign, critics against the integrity of the election system by the main political parties, which was expressed through their constant worries about election frauds. International observers were also dissatisfied with the very complicated system that a very small number of voters understand. BHT1, FTV – The observers also believe that international participation in the elections was needed, since the election process included some questionable methods. "For example, there were removals of elected officials and candidacy suspensions without proper system of protection," said Peter Eicher.
Brcko Supervisor on elections	Oslobođenje pg 5 'Elections are important progress' by Fena, Glas Srpske, pg. 5 'Susan Johnson' not signed, (EuroBlic, pg. RS2 carries a part of the statement as a part of an article under the title 'SDS won in Brcko' not signed) – Brcko Supervisor Susan R. Johnson commented to the first elections of the Brcko District authorities welcoming the high turnout: "We have been encouraged that... these elections took place in a calm atmosphere and were in accordance with the election laws of Brcko District and BiH. These elections mark another important step forward for Brcko District and a new level of citizen participation in Government. Brcko District citizens now expect the future authorities to address their needs and expectations. We would like to extend our congratulations to citizens, political parties and candidates who participated in these elections and to the BD Election Commission and its staff who worked hard to provide the technical support necessary for these well conducted elections."
DL commentary on elections	Dnevni List, front 'Colak and Tihic worried, Dodik and Lagumdžija satisfied' and pgs 4-5 'SDP, NSRZB, SNSD, SDA, HSS satisfied, HDZ concerned, SBiH and NHI biggest losers', by Zvonimir Jukic – According to a commentary in DL, the local elections point out to new trends in political life of BiH. The first message is the poorest turnout ever, which means the authorities will have the legality, but not the legitimacy in the next 4 years. DL argues that the HDZ's position has been shaken because preliminary results show the party scored the poorest results ever, despite staying the strongest party amongst the Croats. When it comes to the Croats, DL notes that the second strongest party in the HSS, which dethroned NHI from the second place. DL goes on to say that Lagumdžija's SDP has many reasons to be happy, given the election results in Sarajevo, Tuzla and Bihac, and in Grude and Neum. Moreover, DL notes that the SNSD is amongst the winners, since the party has won as many votes in Trebinje as the SDS. Finally, DL argues that the biggest losers are the SBiH.

VL blames HR Ashdown, imposed Statute for poor turnout in Mostar	Vecernji List, pg 2 'Ashdown's experiment chases away voters from polling stations in Mostar, by Miroslav Vasilj – Noting that only 37,53% of registered voters turned out in Mostar, the author argues that the reason behind the poor turnout in the imposed Mostar Statute and complicated election rules, since Mostarians are the only ones in BiH that cannot elect their mayor directly and because of the fact that the High Representative for BiH, Paddy Ashdown, introduced the so-called national quota, the result of which that no constituent people can have more than 15 councillors in the Mostar City Council irrespective of results.
DL, VL op-eds on elections	Dnevni List, pg 2, 'Local elections a warning to parties', by Ivica Glibusic – the author says that the low turnout of voters for the local elections in BiH indicates that majority of citizens is not satisfied with the work of political parties to which they gave votes at the last elections, i.e. citizens are dissatisfied with given but unfulfilled promises. Their mistrust is understandable if they have to elect candidates who are not familiar with and involved enough in local problems but who do want to participate in the authority. Therefore these elections indicate to parties that results at next elections will be even worse unless young and expert cadre is represented more than it is now and unless parties clean themselves from crime and nepotism. The author in the end wonders if politicians will understand the indications. Vecernji List, pg 2, 'Elections – confirmation of democratization of BiH', not signed – the editorial reads that the weekend local elections in BiH were fair and democratic for a number of reasons: there were only a few minor incidents during the elections, in some mono-ethnic environments alternative to populist and national parties appeared for the first time...Although it is true that mass-scale turn-out of voters is characteristic of crisis situation, one could not really say that this time the low turnout was the indication of stabilization of inner circumstances in BiH. Yet, the author says that BiH did pass the test of political maturity and has once more sent a positive signal to those who are observing from Brussels, Washington, New York. The commentary ends with hope that after these elections, BiH voters will nevertheless realize that majority of existential problems in Europe are solved on municipal level and that these elections do matter.
NN on elections	Nezavisne Novine op-ed pg 7 'A released fall of SDS and PDP' by Dragan Jerinic – The author raises the question as to whether Dragan Cavic, RS President, would file resignation to the position of the SDS Acting President, following publication of first unofficial election results, since the result SDS achieved during these elections is the worst of all. The author further notes that the election loss in Trebinje marks re-composition of public and political scene in RS, where people, especially those in eastern part of RS, have deviated from the SDS policy. The author also notes that PDP has also gone through a true election debacle. The author further opens the issue of scheduling extraordinary parliamentary elections at BiH level, since two parties from RS, currently representing RS people at BiH level, have lost almost half of their electorate and can no longer represent the people.

War crimes

Update to search of
house

Nezavisne Novine pg 9 'Documentation from Pale searched for at Mauzer's house' by Z. Kusmuk – According to NN inset, the non-governmental organisation "People's Front" expressed concern and astonishment over the search of the family house of the former deputy head of the RS Interior Minister, Ljubisa Savic Mauzer, who had been murdered. The house was searched in an effort to recover the war archive of the RS Supreme Command. The NGOP is of the view that: "RS public is well aware of the fact that Mauzer was Commander of para-military formation "Panthers", which had nothing to do with the RS Supreme Command." The NGO further noted that Mauzer was murdered over the conflict he had with and war-time and post-war criminals in RS, noting that this murder has not been resolved as yet.

RTRS – Spokesperson of RS MoI, Zoran Glusac state that the similar actions will be carried out in the future too.

Grubestic on establishment of War Crimes Department,
Registry
Office

Dnevni List, pg 8 'Indistinctness on establishment of war crimes department', mentioned on front, by Danka Polovina-Mandic – According to DL's unofficial information, one of reasons that the BiH Presidency returned the agreement on establishment of the Registry Office for Department for war crimes, organized crime, economic crime and corruption to the BiH Council of Ministers is the broad authorities the Registry Office will be having, most importantly the issue who gets to control the work of the Registry Office. According to BiH Deputy Justice Minister, Niko Grubestic, it is impossible to arrange everything with one agreement because the system needs to be upgraded through laws and by-laws after the signing of the agreement. In that context, Grubestic says the agreement has been returned to the BiH CoM in order to get some additional explanations i.e. whether the agreement is an international agreement that needs to be ratified by the Parliament. Grubestic also notes that the establishment of the war crimes department with the BiH Court is not disputable, however it is disputable that the war crimes department is to be merged with the department for organized crime and corruption, which already exists with the BiH Court.

Packett says there is 'new coalition' looking for Karadzic	Oslobodjenje pg 8 ‘“New Coalition” hunting Karadzic!’, mentioned on cover, by Antonio Prlenda – SFOR Commander Virgil Packett stated for daily that authorized institutions recently established the “new coalition” which will make pressures needed to arrest Radovan Karadzic stronger than ever. This was stated by the member of the Srebrenica Commission, Gordon Bacon, who added he was optimistic when it comes to the final Commission’s report, which is basically amended June report. It will also carry the list of the victims, which is considered the most comprehensive list to be published. The list of the persons suspected of carrying out war crimes will be submitted to the authorized institutions.

VL: 'Hays supports extinction of Elektroprivreda of Croat Community of Herceg Bosna'

Vecernji List, pg 5 'Hays supports extinction of Elektroprivreda of Croat Community of Herceg Bosna', by Zoran Kresic – The daily claims that the FBiH Ministry of Energy, led by Minister Izet Zigic, and supported by the Bosniak Ministers in the FBiH Government and Principal Deputy High Representative, Donald Hays, is trying to initiate a discussion the aim of which is adoption of an action plan of restructuring of the energy sector in the FBiH, according to which the Elektroprivreda of Croat Community of Herceg Bosna (EP HZ HB) with the seat in Mostar would be abolished and all the money and influence transferred to Sarajevo. VL notes that PDHR Hays insists that such action plan should be made by the FBiH Government, which is opposed by the Croat representatives, who think that such important issues cannot be decided by a Government dominated by the Bosniaks. VL carries the Deputy Speaker in the FBiH House of Representatives, Josip Merdzo, as saying that such an important issue cannot be decided upon by the FBiH Government, arguing it is a matter for the Parliament.

Union of EP HZ HB against privatization on company	FTV, Dnevni List, pg 6 'State wealth in private capital', by NINA – Union of Employees of the Elektroprivreda of Croat Community of Herceg Bosna (EP HZ HB) sent all State institutions in BiH a letter, complaining that there are efforts to implement the already abolished Action plan, which was earlier deemed anti-constitutional. Asked about Aluminij, Hadzipasic said that the Government will not give up on the international arbitration to establish the state capital in Aluminij. "Intensifying the process other possibilities are being opened. It is true that lately there were talks about finding the quality solution even out of arbitration. I don't want to talk about details before having a political consensus. I think we are getting there," Hadzipasic said.

Vrhovac Mihajlovic – GS carries a brief interview with Dinko Corluka, assistant to ITA Director for tax sector, who says that the application of several-rate system of VAT opens the door of corruption and lobbying, because many people would attempt to "classify" their product as lower-rated. This manner also opens the door for entrance of strong lobbyists into the tax system, warns Corluka. He stresses that 0 rate of VAT brings twice as much deductions for the rich than as for the poor.
