FTV's '60 minuta':
is Dodik's move
reckless or brave;
how would he
satisfy appetites
of all interested parties?

FTV current affairs program '60 minuta' by Dragan Stanimirovic – Commenting recent appointment of the SNSD leader Milorad Dodik to the position of the RS Prime Minister designate, reporter wonders whether this is an extremely reckless or extremely brave move. Reporter comments that after five years of criticizing SDS' coalitions with PDP, SDA, and SRS, Dodik now has the opportunity to prove that he is a consistent person, however – as 60 minutes notes – in order for him to become the new RS Prime Minister, Dodik would have to satisfy interests of at least seven RSNA parties and, in that way, to win necessary 42 votes. This would mean, comments reporter, that Dodik would have to rely on support of his former political enemies, such as the PDP. In case of this party, PDP leader Mladen Ivanic already announced it would support Dodik's new Government, but – says 60 minutes – they would probably ask for 'favour in return' [reporter speculates PDP would ask for the position of the RSNA Speaker and three ministerial positions]. Reminding of the Dodik's statement given to '60 minutes' about month and half ago that SDA would not participate the Government, reporter stressed that Dodik would soon have the opportunity to show if he is the man of principle [noting he has already the party one ministerial position]. In this light, reporter also wonders what would SDP do as they repeatedly stressed never to share power with either of three nationalistic parties. However, now they gave support to Dodik, despite the fact that SDA would most probably be part of that government.
