Member of BiH lawyers' team Magda Karagianakis talked about paramilitary forces from Serbia, which took part in ethnic cleansing, killing and rape of non-Serb population in BiH. RS CoP discusses BiH lawsuit vs. SCG, deputies present clear but very different stances; RSNA Speaker Radojicic says Assembly will not discuss against discuss lawsuit	Hayat by Milijana Kos, ATV Banjaluka – On Monday, the RS Council of Peoples (CoP) discussed the issue of the BiH lawsuit against SCG for aggression and genocide. As expected, delegates have conflicting stances on this issue: however, while Bosniak and Serb Caucuses in the RS CoP have very clear stances on the proceeding, Croat Caucus seems to have nothing to say. In the light of later, CoP Deputy Chair Pejo Krnjic stressed the court deals with the case, adding there's no need to further increase of tensions. As for the stance of the RS National Assembly, it discussed the lawsuit twice, in 1999 and 2003, both times concluding it was illegitimate. Newly appointed RS NA Speaker Igor Radojicic confirmed on Monday that RS NA would not discuss this lawsuit again, as previous conclusions were legal documents representing a position of the Assembly. Bosniak Caucus agrees it is not up to the RS to make any decisions regarding the BiH lawsuit against SCG. "RS should not further politicise this issue. It has been politicised enough during last 13 years, and I think that it is time for this [practice] to finally stop", stated RS CoP Speaker Remzija Kadric. "If this is the BiH lawsuit, and if all peoples are constitutive and all citizens equal, then they should all be asked whether they want this lawsuit to be continued and completed", concluded CoP Deputy Speaker Miroslav Mikes. According to NTV Hayat, this law should have been adopted a long time ago, but the Serb representatives were against it. However, things changed after the definition of those who help the Hague indictees has been modified. "This law is now completely in accordance with the law on criminal procedure and BiH crime code. On the other hand, it also satisfies the European standards related to persons indicted for war crimes, their property and the property of their helpers", explained Momcilo Novakovic, Serb representative in the BiH HoR. If adopted, the law should prevent ICTY fugitives and their aides from using checks, notes, bank deposits, securities, certificates, dividends and investments.

VL: Appointments of Croat ministers in new RS Govt is farcical, argues they are not genuine Croat representatives	Vecernji List, pg 5 'Croat ministers defending RS', by Dejan Jazvic – the article argues that the appointments of three Croat ministers to the new RS Government, who have been appointed by the SNSD (Anton Kasipovic, Education), PDP (Slaven Pekic, Agriculture) and SPRS (Predrag Gluhakovic, Trade), the parties which are labeled by VL as "parties that fiercely defend survival of the RS", illustrate the unequal status of the Croats in the entity, and by this, VL argues that the Croat parties cannot appoint their own ministers/representatives. According to Croat member of BiH Presidency, Ivo Miro Jovic, this confirms the farce called the 'constitutional status of peoples that was imposed in constitutional changes from 2002', which were imposed by former HR, Wolfgang Petritsch, and Jovic argues that ministers in entity and state governments must be 'authentic representatives of peoples' and that there should be equal number of ministers from lines of all 3 peoples in all the entity and state governments.

constitutional changes: SDA's Tihic and SNSD's Dodik created pact at expense of Croats

Vecernji List, pg 4 'Agreement between two at expense of the third', by Miro Bosnjak – argues that the ongoing process of constitutional changes has gone into crisis because the SDA and SNSD leaders, Sulejman Tihic and Milorad Dodik respectively, "made an informal pact at the expense of the third party", i.e. the Croats. According to the author, the Tihic-Dodik agreement would turn the Croats into minority in the Bosniakcontrolled FBiH, whilst the Serbs would preserve their statehood embodied in the RS, which is a concept unacceptable to the Croats to the extent that they (Croats) for the first time reached a consensus about a political issue – that they do not

Dedic carries that before the Cantonal Court in Mostar former Herzegovina-Neretva Canton Prime Minister Josip Merdzo and former HNC Minister of Interior Dragan Mandic were sentenced to 1 year in prison due to abuse of position and powers. Namely, back in 1999 Merdzo signed the tender on making the contract with a security service agency that would secure the HNC Government building and Mandic proposed to choose security service agency 'Redarstvenik' since it mostly employed policemen who lost job at that time. For this purpose 66 000 KM were transferred to 'Redarstvenik' and the decision is disputable since it was passed without majority of Ministers' votes. Also, according to the law only police and not a private agency could secure Cantonal institutions. Vecernji List pg 4, mentioned on cover '1 year in prison to Merdzo and Mandic' by R. NN op-ed: the story on liberalization of visa regime is not realistic at the moment	Nezavisne novine op-ed pg 7 'Small concessions and great lies' by Mirza Cubro – The author notes EU Foreign Ministers might decide this week to approve relaxation of visa regime for BiH citizens, however, local politicians are skillfully turning the term "relaxation" into the term "liberalization". The author notes the story on liberalization of visa regime is not realistic at the moment since EU countries have no intention to abolish visas for BiH citizens in next several years from several reasons, primarily because of fear from allowing suspicious persons linked with crimes to enter their countries. The author concludes by saying BiH citizens will be able to travel to EU countries without visas only after the state develops a system in which the rule of law would be respected.
