Srebrenica Commission to submit report at the end of this week	RTRS, FTV, Dnevni Avaz pg 9 'Final report of Srebrenica Commission at the end of next week', Nezavisne Novine pg 2 'Preparation of final report postponed'; Glas Srpske pg 3 'Jobs postpone deadline' – RS Government said on Sunday that its Commission appointed to investigate events in and around Srebrenica in July 1995 is to present its final report by the end of this week. The Commission was initially to submit its report to the government at the beginning of next week but it was delayed due to a "newly received huge quantity of documentation" and with the consent of the office of the top international envoy to Bosnia, a statement said. Earlier this week, Srebrenica Commission said it had discovered 31 new mass graves containing victims of the massacre. The High Representative Paddy Ashdown gave a deadline of mid-June to the commission.

Commission

Oslobodjenje cover page, pg 7 'Without naming criminals, the report has no value' by A.B. – Oslobodjenje writes that members of Srebrenica Commission have been working extremely hard to complete the report, learning that during the weekend members had difficult discussions over the term to use to describe the crimes committed against Bosniaks in Srebrenica. According to Oslobodjenje's source, chances to qualify events as 'genocide' as 50-50 and everything is in hands of the international member, Gordon Bacon. Daily also quotes Mirsad Tokaca, president of the Investigative and Documentation Centre in Sarajevo as saying that the ICTY has already brought decision on this issue, therefore it would be logical for Commission only to respect the court. Tokaca is further critical of the Commission, stating he feels sorry Smail Cekic 'was pushed to uncomfortable situation', concluding Cekic was wrong to accept the appointment in the Commission. Tokaca goes on saying that RS will never name the perpetrators of the crimes, stressing that without it the report has no value.

Humphreys: 'Europe is waiting for arrest of the Hague indictees'	Nezavisne Novine cover and pg 2 'Europe is waiting for arrest of the Hague indictees' – In a brief interview to NN, Michael Humphreys, the Head of EC delegation to BiH, expresses his belief that RS authorities will soon undertake activities aimed at arresting war crimes suspects. Owing to this reason, he does not exclude the possibility that the claims of some recently removed police officers of RS (referring to Dragan Lukac), that international community had given a list with three names of the Hague indictees to RS authorities, whom they need to arrest by Istanbul Summit of NATO are true. However, he does not want to talk about this in detail. On arrests he adds: "If I make a judgement based on experiences over the past few months, I am of the view that the authority officials, but also the people of RS are exhausted over this issue and they want it resolved once and for all. I believe it can be achieved. If pressure is exerted from all sides, it can be done. Can it be done by the end of June? I do not know that, but I hope it can."

B. Luka seminar on processing war crimes cases	Nezavisne Novine pg 3 'Accomplices of the Hague indictees to get upto ten years of imprisonment' – The accomplice of the Hague indictees, who pour the oil into the car tank of the Hague indictees, can face ten years imprisonment, according to NN. Although the BiH Criminal Code containing provisions concerning individual and direct accomplice of war crimes suspect have been applied since 1 March 2003, BiH Court officials told NN that not a single person has so far been faced with trial on this grounds. The above provisions of the BiH Criminal Code were reiterated at the weekend seminar in Banja Luka called "Prosecution of war crimes and promotion of cooperation with the Hague Tribunal". BiH Court officials also told NN it is hard to prove the acts of assistance to persons indicted of war crimes.

"This is the idea that SDA Presidency considers for some time now... I believe that the preconditions have been met to raise this issue and to start with activities directed at inter-Bosniak reconciliation," said Tihic. "However this doesn't mean that we can now go to coalition with DNZ, as DNZ first has to renounce Fikret Abdic, and it has to give up on goals that were dragged, especially goals of secession nature. Only in that case we can talk to that party," concludes Tihic.

Oslobodjenje pg 4 'Preconditions met for reconciliation amongst Bosniaks' by D. Ob. – article covers speech Tihic held in Krajina carrying the same message as above. GS int with Hays on public
companies

Glas Srpske pg 2 'The time of excuses has gone' – In a brief interview to NN, Donald Hays, PDHR, says that the problem of mismanagement at public companies in BiH and accordingly enormous losses these companies make will not disappear until the rules, which concern omissions at these companies, are harmonised with the common practise in Europe and USA. On this he adds: "These companies should act as development motors, create new posts and serve long-lasting interest of their staff, their families and all citizens. Furthermore, the management of companies should serve as one of indicators of market efficiency in BiH and attract foreign and domestic investors. Until it happens, I will keep pointing at this problem, and so should you." He says that the main problem rests with the laws, because they have many holes. On brochure, which OHR has disseminated via local dailies last week, he says that the brochure explains five laws, namely how they function, when they were presented to ministers, which is the planned deadline for their announcement. On this he adds: "This is a sort of educational campaign for the citizens and public media, so they could act as informed citizens."

activities

Oslobodjenje pg 2 ‘‘We all are Hays’’ editorial by Ibrahim Prohic – [PDHR] “Donald Hays these days condemned the authorities due to failure to implement reforms and bad management of the state capital. Reforms are blocked already at the adoption of the necessary laws, and public companies work with loss... We knew all this without Hays. But, this time he located responsibility to the right address. We called upon eight ministers at state and entities levels... Unfortunately, we doubt this will result with necessary changes... Media marked Hays’ campaign as daily news and tomorrow already forgot it.
So called opposition is not using a chance to articulate dissatisfaction of citizens...
Things will be better in BiH only where there an climate [movement] in which ‘we all get to be Hays’,” reads the editorial.

Humphreys urges reforms in statistics field	Dnevni Avaz pg 4 'How to know where is Bosnia and Herzegovina' op-ed by Michael Humphreys – In an op-ed published in DA, Michael Humphreys, the Head of EC delegation to BiH, addresses the issue of reliable static information, claiming they are necessary for BiH especially in the field of economy, and stressing that BiH is the only country with a desire to be admitted to EU but without correct, official statistics. More specifically, Humphreys condemns failure of BiH authorities to appoint the head of BiH Statistics Agency: "Let me be clear – the problems did not piled up due to lack of professionalism of people dealing with statistics. They cannot do much without appropriate political support. What leads to even bigger disappointment is the fact that progress could have been made immediately if there was enough will and decisiveness by structures in power and Statistics Agency."

The shareholders claim they have been outvoted and their arguments have been rejected. The shareholders warned that documentation has been falsified and did not reflect the true situation. Spiric says international NGO sector in BiH serves as points for money laundering	Dnevni Avaz pg 2 'When I talked about money laundering, I referred to NGOs' by H.O. – Two days ago in Banja Luka, Deputy Speaker of BiH House of Representative Nikola Spiric sated that “international community has installed its institutions BiH as posts for money laundering.” Spiric insists he referred to the NGO sector: “I said that a lot of money came into BiH, and that it did not go into reconstruction and development. That means, that a part of these means was misused. My intention was not to point out to responsibility, but rather to its existence.” Dnevni List pg 2 carries in its 'Statement of Day' Spiric as saying: “The International Community installed its institutions as posts for money laundering.”

NN op-ed on organised crime	Nezavisne Novine op-ed pg 7 'Criminals and authority' by Mirza Cubro – The author is making a reference to last weeks' statements by Kevin Carty, EUPM and Commissioner, and Branko Sljivar, Sarajevo Canton Prosecutor. Both of them confirmed there is organised crime in Sarajevo, according to the author. The author is also critical of the fact that unfortunately, much more attention was last week given to a home-made video of the Croatian star Severina rather than to this cry of Sljivar that something needs to be done in order to make the criminals in this state – at least for the moment – feel there is a power of order. The author stresses there must be many reasons because of which Mafia in BiH feels safe, one of which is an obvious link between authority and crime. Speaking of last week's statement of Adnan Terzic, BiH COM Chairperson, Cubro says that regardless of the fact that BiH CoM Chair reiterated the necessity for police reform (since there are 18 police forces in BiH that do not cooperate well), the Chair also said that there is no political will for such reform at the moment. On this, the author grounds his claim there is link between crime and authority.
