EuroBlic: legal experts think political agreements on const. changes unclear; Members of Work Group Ceman and Hadziavdic confirm delay in development of const. amendments	EuroBlic pg RS1 'Lawyers think agreements of politicians are unclear' by Nedeljka Breberina – The article reads that, judging everything, negotiations of politicians on constitutional changes were made in vain. According to the agreement in principles, the amendments to the Constitution should have been forwarded to the Parliamentary procedure latest by February 1, but this did not happen. A member of the Work Group in charge of development of draft constitutional amendments, Mirsad Ceman, says legal experts think certain formulations politicians have agreed upon with regard to CoM and human rights were unclear therefore politicians should again meet and explain what such formulations should have meant. F BiH HoP Secretary and member of the Work Group Izmir Hadziavdic also claims there is a delay in development of the constitutional amendments and says they have managed to transform a part of the political agreement into amendments. 'Still, there are certain unclear things and US Embassy is on the move now, since they have taken our text and they will, most probably, exert a pressure on domestic politicians to accept the rest of the agreement as well', Hadziavdic stated.

VL commentary: Issue of entities and ethnic issues should be resolved in BiH	Vecernji List pg 4 'European train for BiH' by Z. Cosic carries a lengthy commentary on the International Community's results achieved in BiH so far and the author reminds that upon his departure former High Representative Paddy Ashdown sent a message to BiH citizens 'to focus our efforts on European issues and not on disputes about entities and ethnic issues'. The author ironically comments on this message by saying that 'on the way to such simple goal there is equally simple problem that Ashdown himself used to face quite frequently: there are entities in BiH and disputes about them as well as ethnic issues that should be resolved'. The author also concludes that 'simplicity of the aforementioned Ashdown's 'European recipe' would be understood and accepted at the BiH political market when HR's understand 'simplicity' of our current situation. The author says that coming of new HR Christian Schwarz-Schilling was welcomed by all parties in BiH, however it depends on his understanding of 'our simplicity' whether he would be seen off in the same friendly manner.
