Sarajevo – Sarajevo is host for one of the greatest music happenings in the region ever. Irish music band U2 gathered tens of thousands of young people at their concert tonight. Considering that BiH came out of the war just recently, this event represents not only a musical and cultural event, but also a political one. U2 frontman Bono Vox expressed his gratitude for lending the city to U2. He also hopes that U2 will treat the city much better than the rest of the world during the war. BiH President Izetbegovic received U2 members. At the occasion, Vox conveyed William Butler's autobiography book to Izetbegovic as a present from U2. Izetbegovic expressed his hopes that the concert would fulfil the expectations of the band and of the public as well. Regional OHR chief Sir Garrod said that premature statements of some Bosniak and Croat officials had worsened the matter even further, and appealed to all to remain calm until the investigation was completed. UN spokesman in Mostar Moore condemned this unreasonable and cowardly act, but also refused to give any comment about the investigation results. Moore added that the IPTF commissar's deputy had received additional guarantees by Canton Minister that their people would co-operate with IPTF on all levels.

Canton Police Minister deputy Dziho said that the talks on the joint investigation ceased because all sides had their own opinion of what a joint investigation actually is. This matter was also discussed at the meeting between the BiH officials and US Ambassador Kauzlarich, who supported the efforts for the joint investigation. Despite it all, Kauzlarich asked to proceed with Joint Police Forces establishment. Soon after, a meeting with IPTF representatives was held in the presence of Sir Garrod who said that only a few procedural problems had appeared and that he hoped both sides would overcome it within 24 hours. Dziho said that the main problem is Canton Police Minister Coric's refusal to accept the Federation Minister's decision on joint investigation.

Sarajevo – The Croatian Embassy in Sarajevo refuted the announcement of BiH Foreign Affairs which reacted to the statements of Croat officials in BiH about the bomb explosion in Mostar. Croatian Embassy said that the announcement expressed the attitude of the Bosniak people only, which is in opposite to that of the BiH FA Ministry establishment. We point to the fact of one-sided political authority misuse, especially when it comes to the BiH FA Ministry. We also consider this announcement to be an attempt of mitigating some statements of BiH high officials who rushed to blame the Croats for the explosion in Mostar.
