Laws on PBS
have still not been passed

BHTV on Friday – BHTV 1 has started broadcasting on its own channel as the Laws on Public RTV System and Service have not been passed yet. A large number of amendments to the laws have been proposed. European Commission feels that they must not be obstacle to passage of the Laws. Official Brussels see this issue as a dilemma “do we want the PBS or not” and their support to start of negotiations on Stabilization and Association will certainly depend on BiH response. Establishment of PBS is one of the main demands from the Feasibility Study. “The main reason why EU insists on establishment of Public Broadcasting System is because the media, during the war, have participated in creation of hatred and mistrust and paid the price because of such the developments. That is why we have advised for the establishment of PBS, which will rise above those problems, which will work for the public and answer the public”, said Renzo Daviddi, Deputy Chief of EC Delegation in BiH. While some political parties having majority in the parliament are putting in the obstacles to passing the Law, EU has only one question. “The question is does this country needs a PBS or not. If you say that it does not then we will draw conclusions from that”, said Daviddi.

NN op-ed on politics and elections

Nezavisne Novine, Saturday, pg. 7 'Why are idiots dealing with politics?' by Mato Djakovic – The author begins with explaining that the word "idiot" in Ancient Greece was used to describe 'a common citizen', one who does not deal with politics. He claims every citizen in BiH deals with politics, hence no person here is an idiot. He refers to complexity of the process of voting and says he already doubts in regularity of elections. He also says: 'The ones on power do not want to do their work because they are not "idiots". To them, the High Representative is an "idiot". I mean the "idiot" in accordance with the Homer's definition, because he deals with politics instead of them. This is perhaps a bit complicated for some people, but when one thinks this through it is quite simple...Sooner or later you will become an "idiot". Either the Homer-like "idiot" or idiot of nowadays'.

Belgrade University professor Cavoski on Ashdown/IC – part three/final part	Vecernje Novosti, Saturday, pg. 6 ‘Paddy is satrap and self-ruler’ by Kosta Cavoski (part three – the final part – of Kosta Cavoski’s feuilleton) – The author says that HR Paddy Ashdown’s decisions are severely violating human rights and freedoms as guaranteed by the most important international acts. According to Cavoski, since EU bodies are nominating and practically appointing the High Representative, one should look into violations of the Convention on Human Rights and Basic Freedoms, on which the European Council was established. The author lists a number of laws that have been violated by HR’s decisions and concludes by saying: ‘Masters of the world have again estimated there are people who are no capable of ruling themselves in a proper manner, therefore they need to be put under a benevolent guardianship. Since they do not want to accept it voluntarily, one has to occupy their country and impose a foreign administration for their own good’. This, according to Cavoski, in RS leads to a paradox – basic human rights and freedoms are shamelessly violated for the benefit of the same basic human rights and freedoms, while a foreigner, as some kind of a satrap, decides on everything without any kind of a control and removes elected officials in a belief that he is establishing democracy by doing this. lawsuits

against SCG

BHTV on Friday, FENA – Foreign Minister of Serbia and Montenegro (SCG) Vuk Draskovic has stated that it is in the interest of his country to withdraw the charges against the participating states of NATO in order to “distance” itself from the policy that “led to the NATO’s aggression against the FRY” in the spring of 1999. In an interview for the Belgrade newspaper Novosti, Minister Draskovic also declared, “all necessary steps must be taken to access the political and military alliances and integrations” with the EU and the United States. According to Draskovic, “all the former Yugoslav states should withdraw the charges against each other, just as we are withdrawing the lawsuit against NATO in accordance with the principles of alliances and friendship”. “Alliances and friendships cannot be built on lawsuits, and this is also goes for BiH and Croatia and their charges against Serbia”, indicated Draskovic. SCG diplomatic chief emphasized that the “moral dimension” of SCG defence is based on the fact that “we cannot answer for the crimes we did not commit in BiH and Croatia. The crimes committed in Bosnia and Croatia as well as in Kosovo are already prosecuted by individual responsibility in the Hague. It is not possible the try the same crimes by collective responsibility, this time against everybody in Serbia and Montenegro”. According to Draskovic, by withdrawing the charges before the International Court of Justice “we shall gain enormous credits in the eyes of the leading countries of the world, and we will be sending a clear message that this is a new Serbia, the very Serbia that heroically opposed Milosevic’s policy and his wars and crimes”. “We shall also gain the world’s support in the BiH’s dispute against Serbia, and I am almost certain that the international campaign for withdrawing these lawsuits will be just as strong that Sarajevo and Zagreb would have no choice but to comply”, declared Draskovic.
