Bajram greetings – BiHT congratulated Bajram to all Bosniaks in the country and in refuge. The central celebration took place at Gazi Husref Beg Mosque in Sarajevo, and there was also the Bajram reception at the Holiday Inn, hosted by Reis Ceric. In Mostar, the believers, headed by Deputy Mayor Orucevic, were able to visit the two graveyards of their dearest in the west part of town, one of them for the first time since 1993, and the other for the first time after the Mostar carnival incident. Since all the mosques were destroyed in Banja Luka, the believers had to perform their Bajram prayers at the office of the local mufti.

At the SFOR Press Conference– Colum Murphy on Carl Bildt's report to the UN Secretary-General – With regard to the peace process, HR Bildt called the last year the year of success, although each new step ahead shows that there are many more that still need to be taken. Bildt's recommendation was that BiH Presidency Member Krajisnik should be contacted only with regard to his essential duties in that body, because Krajisnik is still tolerating and appreciating the current undercover actions of Radovan Karadzic. He said that accused war criminals are still holding posts in Bosanski Samac and Foca and urged the international organisations to stop all their contacts with these two cities.

Srebrenica Seven Trial in Zvornik – The accused are defended by lawyers from the RS, appointed to them by official duty. Although OHR demanded that the Federation lawyers appear as co-councillors, RS Ministry of Justice said that they can only be assistants to the RS lawyers. Ambassador Steiner said that this only means violation of basic human rights to a fair trial and the right to choose a lawyer. Because the trial was turning into a farce, the Federation lawyers abandoned the Zvornik courthouse today. It is up to the international community now to show to the RS that this does not mean that it is a state of its own. Ambassador Steiner was assured by RS authorities that this situation will soon be rectified.
