Talks between Presidents Bill Clinton and Alija Izetbegovic took place in Washington. Before the meeting, President Clinton said that there was still much work remaining to be done within the mandate in BiH. President Izetbegovic once again stressed that the civilian aspects of the Dayton agreement represent the greatest problem. The implementation of the civilian aspects, as well as the implementation of the "Equip and Train" program and the Vienna agreement regarding the disarmament, are the key conditions for SFOR to leave Bosnia without greater problems, said Izetbegovic.
