Alija Izetbegovic, who is paying visit to the Republic of Turkey, laid flowers on the grave of Mustafa Kemal Ataturk – the founder of the modern Turkey. Both BiH and Turkey's Presidents gave solemn declarations expressing their hopes for successful bilateral co-operation, as well as their conviction that BiH will preserve its multi-ethnic character as an independent, sovereign and territorially undivided country. The talks of the two Presidents were held behind closed doors, presumably about the directives from the Sintra summit, schooling of the BiH Army officers in Turkey, additions to the project Equip and train, arresting of the war crimes indicted persons and reconstruction of BiH.

Despite the fact that the BiH Parliamentary Assembly scheduled for today, did not convene and did not adopt the QSP laws due to new RS demands concerning the Customs Law and the Law on the Central Bank, the HR's Principal Deputy, Michael Steiner threw off any possibility of a new delay of the Donors Conference, earlier conditioned with the acceptance of the QSP laws in full. The Conference, if needed can be held without the RS representatives, Steiner told press conference held in the OHR today. No side in BiH will have an opportunity to hold another side hostage while it itself abstains from already agreed issues.. He also announced that he would meet Momcilo Krajisnik, Presidency member, late tonight to hear once more his clear standpoint on this question. The final stance of the International Community on this issue might be announced even as soon as tomorrow.

Flash News:

- The Dutch media reports that the Hague Tribunal made it possible for finding an accused person guilty even if there isn't substantial evidence whether he/she was or wasn't at the scene of the crime of which he/she stands accused. In theory, this means that all the persons who were present in former BiH during the war can be accused of war crimes. The proceedings against Tadic and the fact that he wasn't directly accused for any of the verdicts passed on him prove that there is a conflict of different legal systems at the Tribunal. Those legal systems contradict each other, but do allow the Hague Tribunal to endlessly combine different methods of pressing charges. By using such a system, the Hague Tribunal managed to sentence Tadic because he wasn't able to prove that he had not been at the scene of the crime for which he was indicted.

- Neues Deutschland reports on the comment of the German publicist Goebel (who recently published his analysis on the DPA) to the statement of HR Bildt's successor. Westendorp said that BiH will be united, although the DPA divides it into two, the RS and the BiH Federation. Therefore, Westendorp is unscrupulously violating the DPA, and by his statement he has allowed continuance of ethnic cleansing of the Serbs.
- The French independent monthly, Balkan Info, writes that the refusal to publish Lord Owen's book, 'Balkans Ulysses', is a shameful act of the publisher which shows the fear of truth. This paper underlines the parts of the book with regard to the shell that exploded on the Sarajevo market place, the Muslim attempts to involve the NATO into the war on their side, and the testimonies of British diplomats about the Serb readiness to negotiate the demilitarisation of Sarajevo before the NATO bombing.
- German weekly, Der Spiegel reports that Franjo Tudjman almost succeeded where the Ustashi criminal Ante Pavelic failed – to ethnically cleanse the Serbs from Croatia. Of 600,000 Serbs who lived in Croatia before the war, about 480,000 fled the country.

Thanks to co-operation between the RS Government and the Swedish businessmen, the financial resources for construction of about 20,000 housing units in the Serb Sarajevo and Serb Sanski Most will soon be provided.
