News Summary

SRS must re-register for elections – OHR

The OHR has ordered the SRS to re-register and apply for the next municipal elections with a court in the RS, but the list must exclude Nikola Poplasen, Mirko Blagojevic and Ognjen Tadic as members of the party. OSCE Head of Mission Robert Barry and Deputy High Representative Ralph Johnson have instructed the SRS on how to provide new documentation to the PEC before 22 October. The three SRS officials have been excluded due to obstruction of implementation of the last election results, the Dayton Agreement and use of inflammatory language.

Sakic case

Croatian Justice Minister Zvonimir Separovic and Simon Wiesenthal Center representative Efraim Zurof discussed the sentence against the former Jasenovac concentration camp commander Dinko Sakic. Zurof expressed satisfaction with the manner in which the Croatian Judiciary tried Sakic. They also discussed the potential continuation of the trial against Nada Sakic and Mirko Eterovic. Separovic said that the Croatian Judiciary would decide on these cases. HDZ spokesperson Ivica Ropus stated that the party has no official position on the sentence because the HDZ never intervened in the work of the judiciary. After the sentence was pronounced, a former Ustasha movement member physically attacked President of the Citizens' Board for Human Rights, Zoran Pusic, reports SRNA. Pusic stated that the atmosphere during the pronouncement of the sentence was worrying because the people hailed the Nazi salute and shouted chauvinist slogans. As the Guardian commented, despite the trial, the Croatian Government still has an unclear relation towards its Nazi period. The Independent writes that crimes committed in Jasenovac shocked even SS soldiers. The German Frankfurter Rundschau writes that Croatia has missed a chance to settle accounts with its fascist past.
