First session of the new RS Government was held in Banja Luka today, with the newly appointed RS Prime Minister, Dodik, in chair. The session was attended by all new RS ministers. Speaking about the work that is ahead of the new Government, Dodik stressed that it would prove that those MPs that had left the most recent session of the RS Parliament in Bijeljina were wrong. "It is certain that no individual will be able to cope with the current situation on his own. All Government members, therefore, need to work jointly". Dodik went on to stress the importance of public work of the Government. "We need to put our personal problems aside and continue to be in permanent session in order to achieve quick results". Ostoja Kremenovic, a Vice -President of the Government, then presented the session with an operational plan for the work of the Government until the end of January, which primarily focuses on the transfer of power and documents, the relocation of the Government from Pale, and the invalidation of all decisions made by the outgoing Government since it was officially dissolved last July.

President Plavsic met with the first Deputy to the EU High Representative, Hanns Schumacher, in Banja Luka today. The meeting discussed the current situation in the RS after the crucial session of the RS Parliament in Bijeljina the other day which elected the new RS Government. "What I am particularly pleased at is the fact that discussions have been opened within the IC regarding funds needed by the new RS Government that has placed us in a different situation now where we are close to getting the planned funds shortly". After the meeting, Schumacher stressed that the new RS Government had been elected in a legitimate way which made it a legitimate representative of the RS. Speaking about the transfer of power, the Deputy High Representative hoped that this process would go smoothly. "I wish to praise Dodik's first step as the new Prime Minister today, where he met with the outgoing Prime Minister and thus demonstrated his cooperativeness". Schumacher added that: "It seems that the IC have now got Serb representatives that will be possible to cooperate with successfully". Schumacher told the press that Westendorp would be departing for Brussels as early as tomorrow to present European Union members with the election of the new RS Prime Minister and the Government. 2

Nikola Poplasen, the President of the Serb Radical Party (SRS), who is also the Deputy Speaker of the RS Parliament, at a press conference today, said that the most recent session of the RS Parliament had been suspended at the stage where the discussion on the election of the new RS Parliament started, and that its continuation was, therefore, illegal. Poplasen stressed that his party would ask for an urgent session of the Parliament regardless of the election. "A meeting between respective leaders of RS political parties and President Milosevic reached a compromise according to which the SDS and the SRS were to accept Ivanic as the future RS Prime Minister, whereas the other side was to give up on its request to have half expert slots at the Government".

Zivko Radisic, the leader of the RS Socialist Party, at an extraordinary press conference today, expressed the position of his party that the newly elected RS Government would be able to cope with challenges that were ahead of it. Explaining the legitimacy of the election, the Secretary of the Party, Zeljko Miranic, said that the Speaker of the RS Parliament had no right to suspend the session without a prior voting by MPs and that the continuation of the session was in line with the RS Parliament Book of Rules. Radisic believed that the SDS and the SRS had not become aware of the importance of the current moment for the destiny of the RS and described the decision by the SDS and the SRS not to continue to participate in the work of the session in Bijeljina as a big mistake.
