Mrs. Plavsic's comment on the progress of the yesterday's constitutional session of the RS National Assembly: "It is not finished. It will be continued on 12 January. In the first part it seemed that everything was started. However, the deputies spent all their energy in that part. Two commissions were formed and the deputies took the oath. I think that a significant part was done and maybe it is good to wait for 12 January. Maybe, due to such time distance it would be possible to have more success regarding the cooperation."

TV news comment on the constitutional session

"Something was achieved, but the nation cannot breathe a sigh of relief. The greatest achievement is that the National Assembly was constituted, the deputies' mandates were verified and it was elected that part of the assembly bodies which would enable next sessions of the new parliament. We expected much more and we hoped the constitutional session would mean the end of both divisions and a political crisis that had lasted for months. It was easy to conclude that some powerful individuals try to do things out of a severe and primitive spite. The reasons for not allowing a direct broadcasting of the session which were given by , we hope now the ex, Minister of Information can be explained only by this kind of spite. In every country which respects its institutions the speech of the President of the country is a necessary part of a civilized ceremonial. Did we really need an intervention, in both of these cases, of the IC representative? He had to warn the Minister of Information that she was going to be replaced and he wondered with astonishment why the President of the country was not allowed to get the floor at the session and why the President was forced to cite the Constitution in order to carry out her authorizations. Why do we have as a state and as a people to disgrace ourselves in front of the world? The question is who is responsible for this and who will pay for it. An out of party President of the Government like a proposed dr. Ivanic possesses all the necessary indisputable professional, political and moral virtues. He has most chances to gather all the antagonist parties at one place and finally to let the RS to breathe synchronically with its both lung wings."
