The recent action undertaken to remove offending contents of RS and BH Federation textbooks has shown how positions of different ethnic communities differ on issues such as the past war in BiH. The issue was addressed at a press conference attended by the RS Minister of Education, Nenad Suzic, his Deputy, Proka Dragosavljevic, and the Director of the RS Institute for Education and Pedagogy, Drago Krneta, in BL today. The conference explained that at the initiative of the OHR, three expert groups had been working since this March reviewing possibly offensive contents in RS and BH Federation textbooks for primary and secondary schools and confirmed that no such contents had been identified in reviewed RS textbooks. Minister Suzic refuted the possibility of common textbooks and curriculums for RS and BH Federation primary and secondary schools, but supported the idea of removing offending pages.
