The RS President today visited Mrkonjic Grad to attend the constitutive session of the Serb National Union in the town. At the session President Plavsic spoke about the current political, social and economic situation in the RS. According to Plavsic, the forthcoming parliamentary elections will represent a turning point in the history of the RS. Answering questions by other participants, President Plavsic reiterated accusations claiming a number of failures and irregularities in the work of the ruling party. The session appointed Radojlo Tomic as President of the SNS in Mrkonjic Grad.

The possibility of BH becoming a member of the European Council was discussed at the Council's HQ in Strasbourg today. A five-member BH delegation met with representatives of the Political Department of the Council's Parliamentary Assembly. The informative meeting, also attended by Jacques Klein, exchanged information on progress made so far on the conditions for BH's membership of the Council. The Director of the European Council Political Department told the press that it was only a question of time when BH would become a member of this body. Klein stressed that members of the Council should be states, rather than entities, which is why the equal participation of both entities was so important

The UN Special Rapporteur on Human Rights, Elizabeth Rehn, in her most recent report, accused Croatia of being responsible for systematically aggravating the conditions on the ground aimed at obstructing mass Serb returns. Rehn further accused Croatia of abolishing the independence of its judiciary, of controlling electronic media and of feeding religious and national intolerance. The report also expressed strong concerns over the recently voiced intention by Croatia to allow the settlement of 180,000 Bosnian Croats and Croats from Posavina in Croatia.

RS President, Biljana Plavsic, met with leaders of local opposition political parties which are members of the Coordinating Board for supporting the RS President in Banja Luka today. The meeting behind closed doors discussed the forthcoming parliamentary elections and the media presentation of candidates. Political parties, members of the Board, reproached electronic media for setting too high prices for time slots that will be allocated to political parties. The Board has addressed a proposal to all candidates to hold at least two joint round tables during the election campaign that would be covered by the state TV.
