Organised crime/security

Fazlic gets 30-day detention	BHTV, FTV on Friday, Saturday's Oslobodjenje front page, pg. 3 'Prosecutor requests 30-day detention for Fazlic', Dnevni Avaz pg. 4, mentioned on the front page 'Prosecutor McNair requests detention for Fazlic', Nezavisne Novine, cover and pg. 2, 'Prosecutor requested 30 day detention for Fazlic', FENA – The BiH Prosecution Office's Department for Organised Crime, Economic Crime and Corruption requested on Friday that detention be set for BiH Interpol Deputy Director Asim Fazlic, suspected of abusing office and authorities. The request has been sent to the BiH Court and in accordance with the law the BiH Court needs to pass a decision within 24 hours. Fazlic was arrested in his apartment in Sarajevo on February 4 by the FBiH police acting at the order issued by the BiH Court. TV Hayat, BHTV, RTRS on Saturday, Sunday's Dnevni Avaz front page, pg. 5 'Fazlic gets 30-day detention, Oslobodjenje pg. 5, mentioned on the front page 'Fazlic remains in custody for yet 30 days', FENA – The BiH Court has ordered 30-day detention for the deputy director of Interpol of BiH, Asim Fazlic, his lawyer Senka Nozica has told journalists. She said the detention was ordered for fear of undue influence on witnesses and accessories. We have 24 hours to appeal, Nozica said, adding that the BiH Court council will then rule on the appeal within 48 hours. Vecernji List (Sunday, page 3, "30-day custody to Fazlic", by Fena), Dnevni List (Sunday, page 39, "Fazlic believes this is about staged process", by N. Dedic) also carry this information. On the same issue Slobodna Dalmacija (Saturday, front and page 15, "Head of Interpol also related with assassins on Leutar?", by Z. Tulic) carries that the arrest of Fazlic disturbed SDA officials more than the bills of indictments that ICTY Chief Prosecutor Carla del Ponte announced. SD says that a group of SDA politicians, who were receiving big amounts of money for their services, stood behind all these actions that Fazlic was suspected of. According to the article, in case that the investigation against Fazlic was correct then one can suppose that Fazlic could say a lot about showdowns of Mafia, murders of Croats from Travnik and most probably about the murder of late FBiH Deputy Minister of Interior Jozo Leutar.

SFOR raids Travnik reportedly looking for weapons	TV Hayat, BHTV on Saturday, Sunday's Dnevni Avaz pg. 2 'SFOR soldiers were entering houses', Oslobodjenje front page, pg. 3 'SFOR raided houses in Travnik', FENA – SFOR on Saturday blocked Travnik's old town using vehicles and helicopters during the search of a house. Terzic, Ashdown on SIPA organisation and functioning	TV Hayat, BHTV, RTRS, FTV on Saturday, Sunday's Dnevni Avaz front page, pg. 2 'Law on state police agreed', Oslobodjenje front page, pgs. 4-5 'No one will be beyond the law', ONASA – BiH Council of Ministers Chairman Adnan Terzic said Saturday the Working Group for drafting a set of laws to set up a strong police body at the state level, the Agency for Information and Protection (SIPA), has ended its work. Terzic and High Representative Paddy Ashdown assessed the set of laws as the first big step toward fulfilling 16 directions of the European Commission on the BiH path to the European integration. "By adopting the set BiH becomes a partner to the EU countries because it achieves identical standard of organization and possibility to fight organized criminal. It's of key importance for faster approaching the European integration," Terzic told reporters in Sarajevo. He said the set of laws includes the Law on SIPA, the Law on preventing money laundering, the Law on police employees and the Law on witness protection program. "Once the set of laws is adopted, the SIPA will have competence for uncover, investigate and prevent severe criminal acts defined by the BiH Criminal Law. This means it will have authorization in fighting terrorism, war crimes, organized criminal and arms and human trade," Terzic said. He added he expects the ministries of security, justice and treasury will next week conduct necessary actions for preparing the set of laws for a session of the Council of Ministers and that the SIPA will move to the foreseen accommodation premises by the end of this month. Ashdown stressed that if BiH fails to set up strong institutions, the country might lose the war against organized criminal, and the battle for Europe. "If other officials in the Council of Ministers and the state parliament fail to join the decisiveness of Prime Minister Terzic in adopting the package of laws on time, it will reflect on the BiH chances to move to the next phase of European integration," Ashdown said. The Working group for drafting a set of laws, chaired by Minister for Security Barisa Colak, was composed of an entire team of domestic experts with assistance of experts from the OHR and the EU Police Mission in BiH. Dnevni List (Sunday, front and page 5, "SIPA will be investigating serious crimes", by E. Mackic)," Vecernji List (Sunday, page 5, "SIPA is important for Europe", by E. Medunjanin) also covered this issue.

Update to Terpentin affair	Nezavisne Novine, cover and pg. 3, 'Substance for drugs imported since 2000' – NN got possession of documents proving that the firms of Rajo Krsmanovic and Bogdan Vasic had been importing acetic acid anhydride to Republika Srpska through 2002 and 2002, and both, Republika Srpska Ministry of Health and Internal Affairs had been informed of if, because they issued licences. According to NN inset 1, BiH Prosecutor's Office is not aware of this information.

Puntaric) carries a reply to the OHR's reaction regarding the SD article on the OHR's involvement in the case of former high-ranked Croat official Ante Jelavic. SD says that in its reaction the OHR did not deny a single claim 'regarding the judiciary scandal and efforts to color the process against Jelavic, Prce, Rupcic and other suspects with political colors'. SD goes on to say that the reason for such tepid and unpersuasive reaction of the OHR is only one and that is the fact that everything that SD wrote is completely true and it is grounded on documents of the BiH Prosecution and correspondence between OHR and BiH Constitutional Court. SD also says it is true that a scandalous letter of the OHR official Ian Campbell in which it was demanded from judge Snezana Savic to change the decision on the Jelavic's case was sent at the end of the Wolfgang Petritsch's mandate, however, at that time High Representative Paddy Ashdown was in Sarajevo for a month already at that time and he knew about all activities of the OHR in details.

Claiming it would be naïve to accept that the RS holidays (in January) are culprit for lateness in implementation of reforms, Beric writes that it is actually about an extreme dishonesty of the people holding key public offices in the entity. "They are speaking in one way while acting in the other," claims Beric concluding that the leading RS politicians are against creation of any state-level institution and particularly the one that should fight organized crime and corruption.

He added that everyone agrees that there is too much government in BiH, which consumes about 60% of the GDP. Most people he talks to think that municipalities need to be strengthened because they are the basic levels of government rendering public services. "But you cannot just give them responsibilities; you also need to give them the resources for providing such services. On the other hand many people think that the state also needs to be strengthened in certain areas and that the minimum a state should provide is the rule of law and meeting the international obligations. But there is a great area of disagreement between the state and the municipalities and that is where there needs to be a pragmatic public discussion," Bond said. Bond thinks that changes of Dayton can happen, and have happened, but they need to be based on a consensus.

RS Council of Peoples fails to agree on army, defence law amendments	BHTV, FTV, RTRS on Friday, Saturday's Oslobodjenje pg. 9 'Without agreement on citizenship law', Dnevni Avaz pg. 4 'Request for change of Citizenship Law rejected', Glas Srpske, pg. 2, 'Commission measuring up Laws'; NN pg. 12, 'SNSD amendments were not harmonised' – At a session held in Banja Luka on Friday, the RS Council of Peoples failed to work out an agreement with regard to the proposed amendments to the law on changes and amendments to the law on army, defence and the law on citizenship. The joint commission composed of five representatives from the RS Council of Peoples and five from the RS National Assembly will try to reach compromises because the caucuses neither managed to work out an agreement nor rejected the proposals for the protection of vital interest. Momir Malic, deputy chairman of the Council of Peoples, representing the Serb caucus, and Pejo Krnjic, representing the Croat caucus, raised the issue of protection of vital interest with regard to the law on changes and amendments to the law on army and defence, while the Bosniak caucus raised the issue of protection of vital interests for the passed law on amendments to the citizenship law.

The Prime Minister stated that reforms in the fields of defence and the rule of law have indicated how much BiH has matured. He said that the greatest Bosnian problems are of economic nature, especially the lack of jobs and slow privatisation. However, he added that BiH's resources give hope to its citizens for joining the EU by 2009. Hadzipasic warned about the possible instability of BiH if it has to wait a long time for joining the EU after neighbouring Croatia is admitted. Landeka) carries an interview with President of the BiH Election Commission Lidija Korac. Talking about a new Statute of Mostar passed by High Representative Paddy Ashdown on the ground of which 6 city Municipalities and the Central Zone were abolished, Korac says that in her opinion this should not cause any changes of the Election Law because the HR passed changes and amendments of the Election Law together with the new Statute. Vecernji List (Sunday, front and page 7, "Disappearance threatens Croat people in Mostar", by Z. Kresic) carries an interview with professor of demography at the Mostar University (Croat) Ante Markotic. Markotic says that the census from 1991 that was a ground for passing of the HR's Statute for Mostar is a big delusion. VL says that in a few researches Markotic referred that 'the official statistics' erased even 11 000 Croats before the war and for this reason Bosniaks were majority in a pre-war Mostar. DL (Sunday, page 2, "SDS' return on political scene of FBiH", by De.L.) carries that according to reliable sources from OSCE a half-secret meeting, during which forming of all-Serb party that should take part at the local elections in Mostar, was discussed, took place in Berkovici a month ago. DL says that confirmation that this meeting took place arrived very soon since 4 days before the HR imposed the Mostar Statute SDS and PDP representatives came to Mostar and send a message to Serb returnees to accept the organization of Mostar that HDZ proposes. According to DL, SNSD President Milorad Dodik will have a task to prevent the SDA and PDP invasion on Mostar and some circles of the International Community and opposition parties from the Federation of BiH will be in favor of Dodik and his party. DL (Saturday, page 6, "Americans are coming", by Z. Jukic) carries an editorial welcoming the engagement of the US Administration in Mostar in the light of the visit that US Ambassador to BiH Clifford Bond paid to Mostar a few days ago. The author underlines contribution that the USA gave to positive process in Mostar during the past years and notes that a halt in the process of the unification of the city during the last year is a consequence of the fact that the US factor was not present in Mostar. The author believes that the US pressure can discipline SDA Mostar officials who try to obstruct the unification of the city. DL carries in its 'Statement of Day' US Ambassador to BiH Clifford Bond as saying: "The one has to overcome parties' disagreements because of future of Mostar."

collection of RTV tax
through phone bills

BHTV on Friday, ONASA – Sarajevo-based BiH Telecom enterprise said on Friday that it cannot accept the notion for the collection of broadcasting subscriptions via telephony bills, as this activity would be a violation of the present legal regulations in the domain, and the signing of such a contract with the Public Broadcasting Service would create a series of legal, economic and technical problems. The BiH Telecom said that the law on protection of consumers indicates that all bills must be mailed separately to consumers, or subscribers in this case. The law also foresees fines for legal entities that fail to comply with the law. "Despite the fact that broadcasting subscriptions are not a service according to this law, BiH Telecom would have to mail special bills for the subscriptions, and the signing of the document would violate the present regulations," the enterprise said in a press release, adding that the public telecommunications service operator license states that termination of services must be limited to service that has not been paid for.

"Hence, the request for termination of telephony services in case of failure to pay broadcasting subscriptions cannot be met by BiH Telecom," said the enterprise, adding that this model of collection of broadcasting subscriptions, if accepted by BiH Telecom, would greatly reduce its incomes. "Besides, the necessary software changes, given their complexity, would be too expensive, and any mistakes would result in long-term negative consequences," BiH Telecom said.

Musa) carry that OHR spokesperson Vedran Persic stated yesterday that BiH is faced with very serious situation after Steering Boards of BH Telekom and HT Mostar refused to implement recommendations of the Federation of BiH Government with regard to collection of RTV subscription. He added that the argument, which says that the future of these two companies is being brought in question due to such way of collection of RTV subscription, is not in accordance with the facts.
