

Results Mean Parties Have an Obligation to Form Governments

The verified election results have now been announced. The HR/EUSR said today that the people of Bosnia and Herzegovina have elected representatives to solve problems over the next four years and to use this time efficiently.

“Political parties have an obligation within the legal framework to form Governments without delay,” the HR/EUSR said. “The challenges facing citizens are too serious to be put on hold. They must be addressed as a matter of urgency, and they can be addressed effectively. The elections offer the chance of a fresh start.”
